Reeb's Friends Give Testimony

Selma, Ala. (AP)—Two companions of the Rev. James Reeb of Boston on the night he was fatally beaten testified Monday before a grand jury considering evidence against four white men charged in Reeb's slaying.

Testifying before the Dallas County Grand Jury were the Rev. Orloff F. Miller, 25, of Boston, and the Rev. Clark Olson, 32, of Berkeley, Calif.

The white ministers, who were beaten together with Reeb on March 9 after they had eaten in a Negro cafe in Selma, refused to comment on their session with the grand jury which lasted an hour and a half.

An attorney, William Manley of Boston, accompanied them to the courthouse. Both said they were flying home immediately.

Early March Drive

The ministers, along with Reeb who died two days after the baeting, were in Selma in early March to aid in the Negro voter drive.

The four Selma men charged with the slaying of the 38-year-old white Unitarian minister are Odel Hoggle, 30; his brother, William Stanley Hoggle, 36; R. L. B. Kelly, 30, and Elmer Cook, 41.

Under Alabama law, first-degree murder is punishable by death or life imprisonment. The jury determines the sentence.

The four, free under state and federal bonds totaling $12,500 each, also face federal charges of violating Reeb's constitutional rights under the civil rights act. On the federal charge, the maximum penalty is a $5,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment or both.

Since Reeb's Death

Circuit Solicitor Blanchard McLeod said other witnesses were expected to apper before the grand jury in connection with the slaying.

There are no Negroes on the grand jury, which has 27 other cases to consider. This was its first meeting since Reeb's death. McLeod said no indictments will be made public until all cases are completed.

Meanwhile, racial tension eased in Louisiana with a calm weekend. Negro leaders and city officials in Bogalusa opened talks aimed at solving racial problems.

Mayor Jesse H. Cutrer Jr. and A. Z. Young, president of the Negro Bogalusa Civic and Voters League, both voiced pleas of restraint. The biracial conferences were scheduled after protest demonstrations last week, when a police-protected Negro march on city hall narrowly missed serious violence after several white men tried to attack the column.

Red Viets Hit U. S. Outpost

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—Communist guerrillas pounded U.S. military assistance command headquarters near the North Vietnamese frontier early Monday with 25 pounds of mortar fire, wounding two American soldiers and one Vietnamese.

In Saigon, evidence of unusual political activity within South Viet Nam's military high command indicated the possibility another coup was in the making.

The Viet Cong also bombarded two Vietnamese units in the north with 100 pounds of mortar fire, inflicting 30 casualties, according to initial reports received in Saigon, 420 miles away.

Both incidents occurred at Quang Tri, provincial capital of South Viet Nam's northernmost province and only 20 miles from the 17th Parallel frontier with the Communist North.

American spokesman said the mortars caused minor damage to the U.S. headquarters, where a number of American regimental advisors are stationed. Twenty-five gallons of fuel went up in flames.

Quang Tri is 25 miles northwest of the coastal city of Hue, recently reinforced with U.S. Marines to protect American installations and planes in the Da Nang-Hue area.

At Da Nang, a U.S. Marine corps mortar crew accidentally killed a Vietnamese peasant when a shell overshot the range during a practice firing session. U.S. officials feared the Communists might use the death to whip up feeling against the more than 7,500 in the Da Nang area.

In Saigon, a number of Vietnamese officers have disappeared amid rumors of arrests.

The maneuvering within South Viet Nam's military high command had all the earmarks of the kind of activity that has preceded this country's numerous coups.

Strict Tax-Exemption Bill Draws Fire

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A bill calling for "strict construction" of tax exemption statutes by administrative officials and the courts drew heavy fire Monday from spokesmen for a horde of tax-exempt organizations.

The measure, LB872, sponsored by the Salaries and Claims Committee at the request of Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, was heard by the Revenue Committee and held for later action.

Supporting the proposal was Lincoln City Atty. Ralph Nelson who suggested that there must be "some limitation on tax exemptions" and a realization that citizens have an obligation to assume portions of the tax burden.

LB872 resulted from a recent State Supreme Court decision affirming a Lancaster County District Court ruling that property of the Lincoln Woman's Club is largely tax-exempt. The City of Lincoln had attempted to tax the club.

In its ruling, the high court indicated that tax officials should give the exemption law a liberal interpretation. As a result, State Tax Commissioner George Dworak suggested a need for legislative direction.

William Peters, attorney for the commissioner, told the committee that there is a need for "a definitive statement in administering the law."

Peters said such direction could be provided by legislatively defining the words religious, educational, charitable and cemetery in tax-exempt statutes.

A home is the center of educational, religious and charitable activities, Nelson noted, and it is not used for gain or profit.

"In what area does a home not qualify for tax exemption?" Nelson asked. Perhaps, he suggested, it is not exempt because it holds no pancake suppers, no bingo games and no bridge club sessions.

Opponents included churches, hospitals, educational institutions, charitable organizations, county fairs and Ak-Sar-Ben.

LB872 would raise confusion over the definition of "strict" and fill the courts with litigation, Omaha attorney Herb White told the committee. White represents Masonic Temples.

Lincoln attorney Robert Crosby, representing the Lincoln Diocese of the Catholic Church, raised the question of "whether the Legislature should tell the court how to construe the law."

The bill presents a problem of separation of powers between the legislative and judicial branches, he said.

Further, Crosby declared, the Supreme Court has done "a good job" in judging various tax-exempt cases, each on its own merits.

Opponents voiced fears that the bill could result in alteration of the court's definition of "exclusive" use of property in determining tax-exempt status. The court now defines the word to mean predominant.

Also heard and held was LB443, proposing a constitutional amendment to permit the Legislature to provide for cancellation of taxes remaining unpaid against real estate owned or acquired by the state or its subdivisions.

The bill attracted no opposing testimony.

LADY FERN FULL OF SURPRISES

Superior—Against odds that must be astronomical, Lady Fern IV has come through with another foursome.

The registered Hereford just gave birth to her second set of quadruplet calves in three years—not to mention a pair of twins in between. The latest are frisky fine, thank you.

"My wife took one weak one inside and warmed him up, but they all seem okay now," said Raymond Amack, a farm "moonlighter" three miles north of Superior.

Also an employee of the Ideal Cement Company, he was surprised enough seeing two calves as he started his daily choring. But the twins soon became quads—and Amack could count up six calves from a cow he'd owned only a year.

Marvin Jackson of Naponee had been similarly stunned when Lady Fern presented quads to his farm in 1963. All four had lived, though requiring "about as much trouble as they were worth."

The seven-year-old cow is an import from South Dakota, and this time was bred to Amack's own bull. Her first offspring, a mere single calf, was running with her when Johnson made the purchase three years ago.

Weighing 34 to 45 pounds, the Superior calves averaged about half the weight of normal newborn. Three are bulls, one a heifer.

Do the multiple births add up to some sort of record?

Half A Hundred Towns Crippled

. . . DAMAGE OVER $150 MILLION

By The Associated Press

The nation counted a staggering 246 deaths Monday in the wake of the Palm Sunday outburst of tornadoes that terrorized six states.

Families scrabbled through debris looking for valuables in what had been their homes, National Guardsmen were ordered to stricken areas to aid in salvage work and prevent looting, and officials began the vastest job of all—clean-up.

141 In Indiana

The death list from five battered states was 141 in Indiana, 53 in Ohio, 42 in Michigan, 7 in Illinois and 3 in Wisconsin.

At one time the death toll stood at 235.

But the count was revised after further checks turned up duplication and, in one case, an injured Ohio resident counting among the dead.

Spectres

Still crippled were communications, utilities and normal services of half a hundred communities. Water shortage and health perils were spectres of the aftermath.

The juggernaut of tornadoes, starting in Iowa, which was relatively unscathed, smashed a path eastward across a heavily populated region to Ohio before easing its punishment.

Those injured, the American Red Cross said, numbered more than 1,500. More than 1,200 homes were destroyed or damaged in 41 counties, and business loss to damaged stores and factories was heavy. At least 53 communities reported damage.

Catastrophe

Damage was expected to run into many millions of dollars.

The torn, crumpled, flattened debris in suburban sections of Toledo, brought the exclamation from Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes: "Fantastic! Unbelievable! There's nothing you can compare it with."

Rhodes ordered Ohio National Guard units to duty.

Indiana, with the highest death toll, was expected to find more bodies as workers searched open fields, cellars of smashed homes, and wreckage of stores. Many victims were blown hundreds of feet by wind.

Two Towns Obliterated

Of 22 tornado-shattered Indiana towns, two—Russiaville and Alto—were virtually wiped out by the twisters.

There was looting reported in a smashed shopping center at Marion, and police took dogs to help prevent more theft.

The four southernmost counties of Michigan were shattered. Gov. George Romney made a plane and automobile survey and said, "It's bad. It's really bad."

Effects of Palm Sunday tornadoes by states:

Indiana—141 dead: injured and homeless uncounted but in the hundreds; 22 cities and towns hit; extensive power disruptions including high voltage lines serving Fort Wayne, population 144,000; multiple deaths and 1,000 in the areas of Lebanon, Kokomo, Elkhart, Goshen, Marion, Dunlap, Koontz Lake. Many victims were caught in trailer homes or in cars on the highways.

Michigan — 42 dead; hundreds homeless or injured; property damage estimated $20 million in Grand Rapids area alone; business disrupted; power lines downed; hardest hit areas, Grand Rapids, Adrian, Coldwater, where National Guard units were assigned, Pearl Beach, Crystal Beach.

Ohio—53 dead; more than 300 injured; hundreds homeless; damage estimated at $50 million; Toledo area hardest hit with deaths in eight counties at Pittsfield (see Page 2), Cairo, suburbs of Toledo and Cleveland; three killed in a bus hurled from a Toledo expressway; Van Wert County left without power, and schools closed in Findlay and Fremont by outage.

Illinois—7 dead; 69 injured; 200 homes destroyed or damaged; loss $10 million; Crystal Lake- Island Lake hardest hit with 80 homes destroyed; Gurneed near Waukegan and Rockton north of Rockford also received major damage.

Wisconsin—3 dead, all motorists near Watertown, 121 injured, Monroe hardest hit with 100 injured; 135 dwellings damaged, loss probably more than $1 million; Watertown, Evansville, Williams Bay summer colony extensively damaged.

SBA Designates Ravaged Regions Disaster Areas

Washington (AP) — All flood-stricken areas of Minnesota and Iowa and four tornado-damaged counties in Arkansas and Illinois were designated as disaster areas Monday by the Small Business Administration.

The counties are Faulkner in Arkansas and McHenry, Kane and Winnebago in Illinois.

The designation permits owners of homes, businesses, churches and charitable institutions to apply to the agency for repair loans.

Donations Welcome

The Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross Monday was notified that the organization would receive through its local offices donations earmarked for tornado and flood victims in the Midwest disaster areas.

Poverty Chiefs' 'High' Pay Hit

Washington (AP)—Rep Adam Clayton Powell, D-N Y, served notice Monday he will try to make it impossible to pay a poverty program director in a city more than the city's mayor is paid as has occurred

Powell made the statement in talking with Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, who appeared before the House Education and Labor Committee in support of legislation to continue the poverty program and double its annual funds —up to $1.5 billion.

Powell committee chairman, also blasted other local aspects of the program, including what he in a weekend statement, called "excessively high . . wildly unrealistic" salaries

Amicable Exchange

However, Shriver and Powell discussed the legislation in friendly exchanges Monday, and Powell said he intends to get a bill out of the committee by May 1

He said he will offer an amendment outlawing any local poverty program if its head is paid a bigger salary than the highest paid local elected official.

Shriver testified he knows of only one instance of this kind. In Paterson, N J, he said, the poverty program head's salary was set at $16,000 a year and local citizens voluntarily raised another $6,000 for him, making his total compensation greater than the mayor's.

Factors

"It was a local decision," Shriver said. He added that he thinks the compensation of poverty program staff should be determined by "the complexity of the job, the quality of the man and the local pay level"

In general, he said, his office tries to set the compensation of directors on a level comparable to that of welfare or health commissioners or school superintendents in the communities where they operate.

Powell replied that the committee is compiling a list of salaries it considers excessive

$15,000 And Up

Of 510 permanent positions in his office, Shriver said, 71 pay $15 000 or more and this is 13 9% of the employes, as against 15% as the comparable figure in the Peace Corps which Shriver also heads.

There have been several complaints, Shriver said, that poverty program executives are not paid enough.

He denied any governors are isolated from planning and carrying out the poverty programs in their states

Shriver testified he is delighted to see arguments and disputes among local individuals and agencies involved in the program, because that assures him that it is not plagued by torpor.

He said he interprets the intent of Congress in authorizing a poverty program based on community initiative as favoring democratic processes in the planning and "that means arguments, disputes, elections"

Space Radio Hints Earth 'Not Alone'

Moscow (UPI) — Unique radio signals received regularly from outer space have suggested to Soviet astronomers "that we are not alone in the universe," the Soviet news agency Tass said Monday.

"Signals received from a space object possibly come from intelligent beings of a highly developed civilization Moscow astronomers say," Tass reported.

Scientists have noted the mysterious signals before. Soviet conviction that they have been created "not by nature but by reasonable beings" apparently stemmed from evidence that they are repeated regularly every 100 days, the report said.

Belief Varies

Scientists at the Sternberg Astronomical Institute were cited as having varied convictions:

—Dr. Nikolai Kardashev: "A super-civilization has been discovered."

—Professor M. Shklovsiy: "An absolutely new, still unknown type of cosmic object has been detected in the galaxy" But, he added, it could be the remnant of a superstar.

'No More Doubt'

"Scientists no longer have any doubts," Tass said. "They say: 'We perhaps have to do with one of the most outstanding discoveries in the history of radioastronomy.'"

The source of the speculation is "an amazing radio source" which has been dubbed "STA-102."

Jodrell Bank Backing

The British Jodrell Bank Observatory was said to have confirmed Kardashev's conviction that the source of the emission was extremely small.

"Radioastronomer Gennady Sholomitsky found during his observations in the last few months that the source sends radio waves of varying strength," Tass said.

"These 'flickerings' are repeated regularly every 100 days No one has ever or anywhere discovered any source of radio emissions in space, now fading now growing stronger, like the light of a far-off beacon (until now)."

German Believed Interstellar Flights Achieved Long Ago

Washington (UPI)—Dr Eugen Sanger argued to the day he died that man eventually would fly to the stars.

Most other scientists appear to believe that Earthlings will always be limited in their space voyaging to trips among the planets of the Solar System. Even the nearest stars, these scentists feel, are just too far away for man to visit.

Sanger a famous German student of astronautics rejected this notion He suggested, in fact that the first interstellar journeys already have been made—hundreds of thousands of years ago, perhaps, by space Vikings from other planets in other solar systems.

Dawdling Rockets

Sanger envisioned a "pure photon" rocket which would be propelled through space at something like 99.9% of the 186,300-mile-a-second pace that light maintains.

210.04 Earth Years

Since such photons are packets of light or other radiant waves, they would leave the rocket exhaust nozzle at the speed of light Allowing for time lost in accelerating to full speed, and in braking at the destination and again on the return home, the round trip described by Sanger would take 210 04 earth years

This would rule out such ventures for men if it were not for something known in Albert Einstein's relativity theory as "time dilation." According to Einstein, time slows down or stretches out aboard vehicles moving close to the speed of light.

So one hour aboard a spacecraft traveling at 99% of the speed of light would seem like seven hours to an observer from earth. Allowing for this Sanger calculated that a trip lasting 210 04 earth years, to and from a star 100 light years away, would add only 34.19 years to the age of the spacecraft crew.

Hydrogen Danger

More earthbound scientists figure that superfast travel in a medium even as thin as interstellar space would build up enough hits between spacecraft and occasional hydrogen atoms to create an intolerable radiation hazard.

Sanger discounted this danger. He went so far in his calculations as to describe the picture of the firmament which his hypothetical voyagers would see.

As their pace increased, light waves from the star they left and from the star they were aiming at would be displaced in the spectrum in such a way that blackouts would occur both fore and aft.

'Starbow'-Bound Tunnel

Behind them would be an ever-widening black hole, in front a smaller but equally dark tunnel bounded by a "starbow"—a region of rainbow colors produced by stars ringing the area of blackout

Sanger professed to believe that man certainly will solve the technical problems of interstellar problem. In view of the population explosion on earth, man must seek homesteads elsewhere. He must travel to the stars.

The voyagers returning to earth from their trail-blazing journey to the star 100 light years distant would find themselves "displaced persons of the past."

34 Years Vs. Ages

While they had aged only 34 years or so, new generations would have been born on earth, grown old and died. Civilizations would have changed and customs altered.

But in the annals of intelligent life in the vast universe, this perhaps would be nothing really new.

"It could be possible," Sanger wrote before he died, "that such journeys have been carried out hundreds of thousands of years ago from other stars, and that the crews of these starships also met man at the beginning of his history and implanted in him the myth of gods and a longing after heaven."

MRS. PHILLIP AMON . . . stares in disbelief at what tornado did to her Marion, Ind., home.

Monument Is Only Thing Left Standing

Pittsfield Ohio (AP)—A Civil War monument was all that remained standing when the sun rose Monday over this tiny community, reduced to rubble by a savage tornado.

Nine persons died Sunday night under the fury of the twister that leveled a dozen homes, two frame church buildings, the brick town hall and a combined grocery store-service station.

These were the only buildings in this farming community of 50 residents, situated at the crossroads of two state highways about 35 miles southwest of Cleveland

Altogether, 19 persons were killed by the tornado that skipped through Lorain County and touched the populous Greater Cleveland area to the east

Scores of houses were wrecked the injured numbered over 100 and more than 40 were hospitalized

'Just Came Apart'

Carl Dewey said his two-story frame house "just came apart around us." Eight-tenths of a mile away, Dewey's son and two grandsons died when their house was demolished

Dewey helped carry the bodies of his son, Richard, 27, and grandson, Sandy, 7, from the basement of that house. The body of Stephen Dewey, 6 months, was found several hours later in a field. Dewey's wife, Donna, was reported in critical condition at Allen Memorial Hospital in Oberlin.

Richard Kay said he had just gotten his outboard motorboat "ready for the water" when he heard the storm coming and dived with his 10-year-old son Arthur, for his basement. He plunged into the cellar, and a chest of drawers that fell through from the second floor lodged above him and his son, shielding them from the falling debris

Litter Passes

Later, Kay was viewing the wreckage at the intersection of Ohio Routes 303 and 58, where his boat landed in the wreckage of a church, when three men walked past carrying a litter with a blanket-wrapped body.

It was the body of his mother, Mrs. Eva Robey, 57, who had been trapped in a bedroom.

"I prayed," said Kay "It was only the power of God and prayer . . . that helped me keep my balance and sanity."

Professor Dead

Also among the dead was Addison W Ward, 35, who came here last fall to take the post of assistant professor of English at Oberlin, and his son, Peter, 9. His wife, Mary, was reported seriously injured and was taken to Allen Hospital.

The William Krieg home was lifted from its foundations and slammed into the house next door. Beverly Poiner of Wellington, Mrs. Krieg's daughter, poked through the wreckage Monday and said all she could find usable was some clothing, a trombone and an encyclopedia set.

Her mother and stepfather were in the hospital.

Two persons driving through town were killed.

Number Of Tornadoes Will Never Be Known

Kansas City (AP) - The tornadoes were too many, too fast and in the wrong places at the wrong time.

They slashed and gouged the Upper Midwest for 12 hours Sunday, killing more than 200 persons and injuring hundreds more. But nobody, including the Weather Bureau experts, will ever be sure just how many twisters there were.

Even so, only two occurred outside the area for which tornado warnings had been issued

Multiple Twisters

"We recorded 37, but a number of these were multiple—that is two or more twisters hitting in the same specific locality," explained Don House, chief of the Kansas City Weather Bureau under whose direction is operated the severe local storm forecast center for the country. This unit keeps records on all such storms.

"This (a splurge of storms) happens on the average of once or twice a year, usually in Texas or Oklahoma. But out there they are most likely to hit open spaces and do little or no damage. Now, move this condition north and east into thickly populated industrial areas and you have what happened Sunday."

House said tornadoes are ordinarily expected in the Upper Midwest in May or June —rarely in April. And just as rarely as far east as Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Only Two Outside

"But our forecasting was so accurate," House said, "that only two of the tornadoes occurred outside of the areas for which we had issued advance warnings One of these was in western Wisconsin and one in eastern Iowa So far as we can find out, no one was killed in either. These two were just outside areas covered in our forecasts and if people had been watching the skies, they might well have anticipated they were in for some bad weather."

House said that despite the inability of the staff to log all the storms, he regarded operation of the severe weather warning system Sunday as highly successful.

This system depends in the main on volunteer observers in a 50 to 100-mile radius around reporting centers. During the tornado season, these observers watch gathering storm clouds and notify their center immediately if they spot tornado formations.

Collecting Data

Putting this information together with scientific data collected by radar and other devices, the Weather Bureau experts issue their advance warnings

When the tornadoes begin to strike ground, the logging and mapping starts. It was during this period Sunday that the severe weather center became swamped with reports.

The result, House said, was that when we got calls reporting additional tornadoes in the immediate vicinity of an area in which we already had logged one tornado, we simply recorded them all as being the same tornado"

Technical Doubt

Technically this may or may not have been correct. A single tornado can hop-skip across country, touching down at widely seperated places. Or the general storm condition which spawns tornadoes can drop several twisters close together.

The Sunday storms were touched off by a very low pressure system which moved rapidly from central Iowa across northern Illinois and the lower Great Lakes area. This collided with a broad band of moist and unstable air moving up from the Gulf of Mexico. At the same time these two systems were tangled with an intense band of winds (up to 170 miles per hour) moving from southwest to northeast.

Result: tornadoes

Steel Talks Off Dead Center

Pittsburgh (AP)— An abrupt change in the negotiating format appeared Monday to have gotten deadlocked basic steel contract talks off dead center.

"I think it has. You can almost sense it," said Joseph Molony, apparent vice president-elect of the United Steelworkers and top aide to I. W. Abel, who is expected to succeed soon to the presidency.

Molony conferred with Abel during a lunch break in a five-hour bargaining session that for the first time involved only the four top men of the industry and the union

Abel was not available for comment, but Molony said there was a marked difference in the mood of talks compared to last week when both sides indicated they were hopelessly deadlocked

Representing the union at Monday's meeting were its embattled incumbent President David J McDonald and Abel

The industry was represented by R. Conrad Cooper and Health Larry, executives of U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest steelmaker and the leader in industrywide labor talks.

Cooper is chief negotiator for the 11 major steel firms which face a possible strike May 1.

The four men represent the nucleus of a 12-man committee which had bargained for five weeks, apparently without any success

The 12-man group has not been disbanded Most its other members were at work Monday on subcommittees involved with non-economic aspects of the new contract

Molony said he expected the full committee to meet again in a day or two.

Poverty Chiefs' 'High' Pay Hit

Washington (AP)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., served notice Monday he will try to make it impossible to pay a poverty program director in a city more than the city's mayor is paid—as has occurred.

Powell made the statement in talking with Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, who appeared before the House Education and Labor Committee in support of legislation to continue the poverty program and double its annual funds—up to $1.5 billion.

Powell, committee chairman, also blasted other local aspects of the program, including what he, in a weekend statement, called "excessively high . . . wildly unrealistic" salaries.

Amicable Exchange

However, Shriver and Powell discussed the legislation in friendly exchanges Monday, and Powell said he intends to get a bill out of the committee by May 1.

He said he will offer an amendment outlawing any local poverty program if its head is paid a bigger salary than the highest paid local elected official.

Shriver testified he knows of only one instance of this kind. In Paterson, N.J., he said, the poverty program head's salary was set at $16,000 a year and local citizens voluntarily raised another $6,000 for him, making his total compensation greater than the mayor's.

Factors

"It was a local decision," Shriver said. He added that he thinks the compensation of poverty program staff should be determined by "the complexity of the job, the quality of the man and the local pay level."

In general, he said, his office tries to set the compensation of directors on a level comparable to that of welfare or health commissioners or school superintendents in the communities where they operate.

Powell replied that the committee is compiling a list of salaries it considers excessive.

$15,000 And Up

Of 510 permanent positions in his office, Shriver said, 71 pay $15,000 or more and this is 13.9% of the employes, as against 15% as the comparable figure in the Peace Corps, which Shriver also heads.

There have been several complaints, Shriver said, that poverty program executives are not paid enough.

He denied any governors are isolated from planning and carrying out the poverty programs in their states.

Shriver testified he is delighted to see arguments and disputes among local individuals and agencies involved in the program, because that assures him that it is not plagued by torpor.

He said he interprets the intent of Congress in authorizing a poverty program based on community initiative as favoring democratic processes in the planning and "that means arguments, disputes, elections."

German Believed Interstellar Flights Achieved Long Ago

Washington (UPI)—Dr. Eugen Sanger argued to the day he died that man eventually would fly to the stars.

Most other scientists appear to believe that Earthlings will always be limited in their space voyaging to trips among the planets of the Solar System. Even the nearest stars, these scentists feel, are just too far away for man to visit.

Sanger, a famous German student of astronautics, rejected this notion. He suggested, in fact, that the first interstellar journeys already have been made—hundreds of thousands of years ago, perhaps, by space Vikings from other planets in other solar systems.

Dawdling Rockets

So far, the fastest clip man's outbound rockets have hit is about seven miles a second, which is turtle-like dawdling compared to the velocity of light.

It would get its power perhaps from nuclear annihilation processes in which every last ounce of rocket fuel would be transformed into energy in the form of electromagnetic photons.

210.04 Earth Years

Since such photons are packets of light or other radiant waves, they would leave the rocket exhaust nozzle at the speed of light. Allowing for time lost in accelerating to full speed, and in braking at the destination and again on the return home, the round trip described by Sanger would take 210.04 earth years.

This would rule out such ventures for men if it were not for something known in Albert Einstein's relativity theory as "time dilation." According to Einstein, time slows down or stretches out aboard vehicles moving close to the speed of light.

So one hour aboard a spacecraft traveling at 99% of the speed of light would seem like seven hours to an observer from earth. Allowing for this, Sanger calculated that a trip lasting 210.04 earth years, to and from a star 100 light years away, would add only 34.19 years to the age of the spacecraft crew.

Hydrogen Danger

More earthbound scientists figure that superfast travel in a medium even as thin as interstellar space would build up enough hits between spacecraft and occasional hydrogen atoms to create an intolerable radiation hazard.

Sanger discounted this danger. He went so far in his calculations as to describe the picture of the firmament which his hypothetical voyagers would see.

As their pace increased, light waves from the star they left and from the star they were aiming at would be displaced in the spectrum in such a way that blackouts would occur both fore and aft.

'Starbow'-Bound Tunnel

Behind them would be an ever-widening black hole, in front a smaller but equally dark tunnel bounded by a "starbow"—a region of rainbow colors produced by stars ringing the area of blackout.

Sanger professed to believe that man certainly will solve the technical problems of interstellar problem. In view of the population explosion on earth, man must seek homesteads elsewhere. He must travel to the stars.

34 Years Vs. Ages

While they had aged only 34 years or so, new generations would have been born on earth, grown old and died. Civilizations would have changed and customs altered.

But in the annals of intelligent life in the vast universe, this perhaps would be nothing really new.

"It could be possible," Sanger wrote before he died, "that such journeys have been carried out hundreds of thousands of years ago from other stars, and that the crews of these starships also met man at the beginning of his history and implanted in him the myth of gods and a longing after heaven."

"This (a splurge of storms) happens on the average of once or twice a year, usually in Texas or Oklahoma. But out there they are most likely to hit open spaces and do little or no damage. Now, move this condition north and east into thickly populated industrial areas and you have what happened Sunday."

House said tornadoes are ordinarily expected in the Upper Midwest in May or June—rarely in April. And just as rarely as far east as Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Only Two Outside

"But our forecasting was so accurate," House said, "that only two of the tornadoes occurred outside of the areas for which we had issued advance warnings. One of these was in western Wisconsin and one in eastern Iowa. So far as we can find out, no one was killed in either. These two were just outside areas covered in our forecasts and if people had been watching the skies, they might well have anticipated they were in for some bad weather."

House said that despite the inability of the staff to log all the storms, he regarded operation of the severe weather warning system Sunday as highly successful.

This system depends in the main on volunteer observers in a 50 to 100-mile radius around reporting centers. During the tornado season, these observers watch gathering storm clouds and notify their center immediately if they spot tornado formations.

Collecting Data

Putting this information together with scientific data collected by radar and other devices, the Weather Bureau experts issue their advance warnings.

When the tornadoes begin to strike ground, the logging and mapping starts. It was during this period Sunday that the severe weather center became swamped with reports.

The result, House said, was that "if we got calls reporting additional tornadoes in the immediate vicinity of an area in which we already had logged one tornado, we simply recorded them all as being the same tornado."

Technical Doubt

Technically this may or may not have been correct. A single tornado can hop-skip across country, touching down at widely seperated places. Or the general storm condition which spawns tornadoes can drop several twisters close together.

The Sunday storms were touched off by a very low pressure system which moved rapidly from central Iowa across northern Illinois and the lower Great Lakes area. This collided with a broad band of moist and unstable air moving up from the Gulf of Mexico. At the same time these two systems were tangled with an intense band of winds (up to 170 miles per hour) moving from southwest to northeast.

Result: tornadoes.

Steel Talks Off Dead Center

Pittsburgh (AP)— An abrupt change in the negotiating format appeared Monday to have gotten deadlocked basic steel contract talks off dead center.

"I think it has. You can almost sense it," said Joseph Molony, apparent vice president-elect of the United Steelworkers and top aide to I. W. Abel, who is expected to succeed soon to the presidency.

Molony conferred with Abel during a lunch break in a five-hour bargaining session that for the first time involved only the four top men of the industry and the union.

Abel was not available for comment, but Molony said there was a marked difference in the mood of talks compared to last week when both sides indicated they were hopelessly deadlocked.

Representing the union at Monday's meeting were its embattled incumbent President David J. McDonald and Abel.

The industry was represented by R. Conrad Cooper and Health Larry, executives of U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest steelmaker and the leader in industrywide labor talks.

Cooper is chief negotiator for the 11 major steel firms which face a possible strike May 1.

The four men represent the nucleus of a 12-man committee which had bargained for five weeks, apparently without any success.

The 12-man group has not been disbanded. Most its other members were at work Monday on subcommittees involved with non-economic aspects of the new contract.

Molony said he expected the full committee to meet again in a day or two.

FDR Memorial Simple, Modest

Washington (AP) — A simple modest memorial, the kind he once said he wanted, was dedicated Monday to President Franklin D. Roosevelt on the 20th anniversary of his death. It is the capital's first to the New Deal chief.

A hundred or so passersby on Pennsylvania Avenue paused to watch the hour-long ceremonies while relatives and close friends unveiled the 7½-ton white marble stone on a somewhat worn, grassy triangle near the National Archives Building.

A short time later, on his way home from opening the baseball season here, President Johnson stopped to place a big wreath of red and white carnations for the man he reveres as his mentor.

"Truly today's America is his America more than it is the work of any man," Johnson said in a memorial statement.

'To Be Plain'

Roosevelt had spoken of the "green plot," an elm-shaded one-third acre, near the National Archives Building with its famed inscription "The Past is Prologue," as site for any memorial to him. FDR once said he wanted it "to be plain."

"The only monument that mattered to him was the continuing commitment to his ideals and purposes — to his vision of a just society and a peaceful world," Roosevelt's longtime friend, Averell Harriman, reminded the gathering in a dedication speech.

And, as President Johnson saw it:

"Millions of men at work, and healthy children, are his monument. Freedom here, and in many distant lands, is his monument. And we — his friends, his colleagues and his followers are his monument."

"It is right and it is good that we should be here today fulfilling a special wish of my father," said Roosevelt's only daughter, Anna, now Mrs. James A. Halsted of Washington.

Granddaughter, "Sistie," once the nation's darling youngster in the White House, now dark-haired slender Mrs. Van H. Seagraves, pulled a narrow red, white and blue ribbon to unveil the stone, 6 feet 10 inches, by 3 feet 8 inches and just 3 feet 3 inches high. It bears only this inscription "In memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt 1882-1945."

An American flag, stuck in the ground, whipped in brisk weather turned suddenly warm and springlike — "typical of Roosevelt luck," according to master of ceremonies Charles Palmer of Atlanta.

Marked Contrast

It was Palmer, former special assistant to Roosevelt, who had spurred friends and associates to contribute some $12,000 for the sort of memorial FDR wanted. It is a marked contrast to a controversial $4.5-million project calling for a statue of Roosevelt surrounded by eight 130-foot-high slabs.

Yet, Harriman, in his dedication speech, saluted Francis Biddle, former attorney general and chairman of the big project who was in the audience, noting:

"None of us would wish President Roosevelt's self-denying ordinance to discourage the eventual erection of an appropriate Roosevelt memorial in Washington."

"Today," though, he added, "we execute his own expressed desire . . . This is the monument which would please him most."

Grains Across State Start To Turn Green

Winter wheat and other fall sown grains are beginning to grow across the state, government crop observers said Monday.

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said the wheat crop has started to green up along the southern border. A few operators in the southwest have been able to do some pasturing.

The division said some winter wheat kill became apparent as the plants started to grow, but that generally the crop came through the winter in fair to good condition.

Seed bed preparation and other field work finally got under way in parts of the state. There was some stalk cutting, plowing and disking in the Panhandle, central and southwest sections.

Sugar beet planting has begun in the Panhandle and southwest. Early potato planting is under way in the central area along the Platte River.

Wet grounds has limited field work in the eastern third of the state.

Cool season grasses are starting to green and have made some growth in the extreme southeast. Soil moisture supplies are generally adequate to give pasture grasses a good start, but more rain is needed for continued growth.

Supplemental feeding of livestock continued at a relatively high level. The division said it will be some time, though, before pastures have made sufficient growth to allow grazing.

Calving has passed the midpoint in several areas. Lambing is nearing completion in the smaller flocks and is well under way in the larger flocks.

Higher Judging Standards Goal Of Clinic

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Uniformity and higher standards in livestock judging were the goals for 100 entrants who registered Monday for the two day University of Nebraska County Fair Livestock Judging Clinic.

Judging contestants began their course by selecting on-hoof winners in a carcass class that was slaughtered immediately after the live judging to let contestants inspect the animals on-the-rail in the NU Meats Department Tuesday afternoon.

A new feature of the two day event was a "beauty demonstration" or cattle blocking demonstration Monday evening that showed the judges the methods of making the most use of an animal's hair in preparing the animal to look it's best when entering the show ring.

Official judges for the placing of livestock classes used in the clinic were: W. N. "Bill" Anderson, West Liberty, Iowa, cattle classes; Archie Whiet, Fremont, Geo. A. Hormel Co., swine classes; and the veteran NU sheepman and judging instructor Prof. M. A. Alexander, sheep classes.

Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben was cosponsor of the event with the university by underwriting part of the expenses of the clinic.

The judging student with the highest over-all judging score compiled during the two day event will receive a plaque while the next 10 top judges will be awarded ribbons with special distinction for the top individual in the sheep, swine and cattle divisions.

Police Value Missing Coins At $500,000

Omaha (AP)—A collection of ancient Greek coins estimated by police to be worth about $500,000 was taken in a burglary at the home of Dr. Hewitt Judd in Omaha.

Detectives said thieves forced a sliding glass door and took the coin collection plus $5,000 in cash from a vault in a basement recreation room. From a bedroom upstairs two suitcases, a collection of jewelry including diamond earrings, platinum and gold rings and 13 pieces of ceremonial jade were taken. The vault door, behind a sliding wall panel, was punched, detectives said.

The 500-piece coin collection dating back to 700 B. C. is said to be among the best private collections in the country. Dr. Judd would neither confirm nor deny the value placed on the collection by police but said "It is certainly one of the world's largest."

Dr. Judd said his insurance company plans to offer a generous reward for the return of the collection.

"It's a highly specialized collection," he said, "and the persons who stole it might be persuaded to return it if they can't dispose of it for money."

$200 In Securities Taken By Burglars

Burglars stole an estimated $200 in securities from Natkin and Co., 1400 Furnas, Sunday night.

Maly Broke Both Legs In Plane Crash

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP)—Eight Americans, including a Nebraska doctor and his wife, lost on air flights across the northern jungles of Brazil have reached the seaport of Belem where two of the Americans were reported hospitalized.

The U.S. Embassy here said Dr. James Maly of Fullerton, Neb., suffered two broken legs and Frank Straathof of Arcadia, Calif., suffered a back injury.

The Embassy said the eight took off March 29 from Brasilia, the capital, in two light planes on the 1,250 mile flight to Manaus, an Amazon River port.

The Brazilian Air Force said one of the planes went down with engine trouble near Barrado Sao Manoel, 950 miles northwest of Brasilia, and that the other crashed on landing to help the crippled plane.

In Washington, State Department officials said both planes ran out of gas over the Cururu jungles.

The Embassy said that Mrs. Maly escaped with minor injuries.

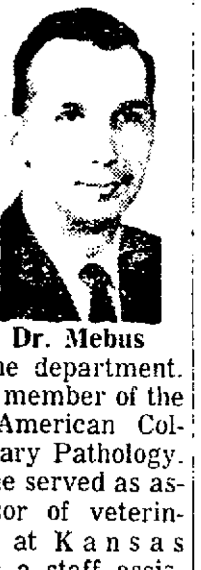
Mebus Joining NU Veterinary Science Staff

A former Kansas State University faculty member has been appointed by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents to the staff of the Department of Veterinary Science, effective July 1.



Dr. Mebus

He is Dr. Charles A. Mebus, who will assume responsibilities for histopathology work in the department. Dr. Mebus is a member of the board of the American College of Veterinary Pathology. From 1963-65, he served as associate professor of veterinary pathology at Kansas State, and was a staff assistant from 1960-63. From 1958-60, he was in general practice as a veterinarian at Dover, Delaware.

Dr. Mebus, who will hold the rank of professor at Nebraska, received his M.S. and PH.D. degree from Kansas State University in 1962 and 1963, respectively. He received his D.V.M. degree from Cornell University in 1956.

Dr. M. J. Twiehaus, chairman of the Department of Veterinary Science, said the appointment of Dr. Mebus will fulfill a long-standing need of the department to more thoroughly investigate the pathogenesis or development of disease agents in the body of animals.

1,000 Cudahy Workers Get Discharge Notices

. . . Permanent Closing Of Plant Considered

Omaha (AP)—Discharge notices have been sent to more than 1,000 members employed by the Omaha plant of Cudahy Packing Company and the firm is considering permanently closing the plant, Edward Cudahy, president and chairman of the board, said Monday.

Cudahy's statement followed a special meeting of the board of directors. The plant has been closed by a labor dispute since last Wednesday.

Anton Armenta, president of Local 60 of the United Packinghouse, Food and Allied workers, which represents all production workers at the plant, called the move "irresponsible" and "a deliberate attempt on the part of the company to confuse the issues and institute a fear campaign." He said it is "a direct violation of the contract that is in effect between the company and the union."

Cudahy said the board had instructed him to consider these possibilities concerning the future of the plant: continuation of the operation; sale or lease; abandonment.

Cudahy said the recent trouble, which the company termed a strike and the union described as a lockout "and a long series of similarly unlawful work stopages" make it impossible for him to offer any encouragement regarding the resumption of operations at the highly automated $4.5 million plant opened late in 1961.

Cudahy said the principal reason that a permanent shutdown is being considered is "economic difficulties brought about by the unwarranted irresponsibility of union leadership." He said this has been limited to Local 60 at Omaha. The firm works with 83 locals of 10 unions at 23 locations "and only local 60 members have struck again and again and always in violation of contractural obligations."

Armenta said total employment at the plant, including non-union workers is 1,796 but of 1,150 to 1,200 workers represented by the union, some are on vacation and leave and are not involved.

The current labor trouble started when several members of a cleanup crew were dismissed a week ago in a company efficiency program. A study has been conducted by a management consulting firm to recommend cost-saving measures. This study and other efforts of management to cut labor costs have been points of dispute for several months.

FDR Memorial Simple, Modest

Washington (AP) — A simple modest memorial, the kind he once said he wanted, was dedicated Monday to President Franklin D. Roosevelt on the 20th anniversary of his death. It is the capital's first to the New Deal chief.

A hundred or so passersby on Pennsylvania Avenue paused to watch the hour-long ceremonies while relatives and close friends unveiled the 7½-ton white marble stone on a somewhat worn, grassy triangle near the National Archives Building.

A short time later, on his way home from opening the baseball season here, President Johnson stopped to place a big wreath of red and white carnations for the man he reveres as his mentor.

"Truly today's America is his America more than it is the work of any man," Johnson said in a memorial statement.

'To Be Plain'

Roosevelt had spoken of the "green plot," an elm-shaded one-third acre, near the National Archives Building with its famed inscription "The Past is Prologue," as site for any memorial to him. FDR once said he wanted it "to be plain."

"The only monument that mattered to him was the continuing commitment to his ideals and purposes — to his vision of a just society and a peaceful world," Roosevelt's longtime friend, Averell Harriman, reminded the gathering in a dedication speech.

And, as President Johnson saw it:

"Millions of men at work, and healthy children, are his monument. Freedom here, and in many distant lands, is his monument. And we — his friends, his colleagues and his followers are his monument."

"It is right and it is good that we should be here today fulfilling a special wish of my father," said Roosevelt's only daughter, Anna, now Mrs. James A. Halsted of Washington.

Granddaughter, "Sistie," once the nation's darling youngster in the White House, now dark-haired slender Mrs. Van H. Seagraves, pulled a narrow red, white and blue ribbon to unveil the stone, 6 feet 10 inches, by 3 feet 8 inches and just 3 feet 3 inches high. It bears only this inscription "In memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt 1882-1945."

An American flag, stuck in the ground, whipped in brisk weather turned suddenly warm and springlike — "typiccal of Roosevelt luck," according to master of ceremonies Charles Palmer of Atlanta.

Marked Contrast

It was Palmer, former special assistant to Roosevelt, who had spurred friends and associates to contribute some $12,000 for the sort of memorial FDR wanted. It is a marked contrast to a controversial $4.5-million project calling for a statue of Roosevelt surrounded by eight 130-foot-high slabs.

Yet, Harriman, in his dedication speech, saluted Francis Biddle, former attorney general and chairman of the big project who was in the audience, noting:

"None of us would wish President Roosevelt's self-denying ordinance to discourage the eventual erection of an appropriate Roosevelt memorial in Washington."

"Today," though, he added, "we execute his own expressed desire . . . This is the monument which would please him most."

Grains Across State Start To Turn Green

Winter wheat and other fall sown grains are beginning to grow across the state, government crop observers said Monday.

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said the wheat crop has started to green up along the southern border. A few operators in the southwest have been able to do some pasturing.

The division said some winter wheat kill became apparent as the plants started to grow, but that generally the crop came through the winter in fair to good condition.

Seed bed preparation and other field work finally got under way in parts of the state. There was some stalk cutting, plowing and disking in the Panhandle, central and southwest sections.

Sugar beet planting has begun in the Panhandle and southwest. Early potato planting is under way in the central area along the Platte River.

Wet grounds has limited field work in the eastern third of the state.

Cool season grasses are starting to green and have made some growth in the extreme southeast. Soil moisture supplies are generally adequate to give pasture grasses a good start, but more rain is needed for continued growth.

Supplemental feeding of livestock continued at a relatively high level. The division said it will be some time, though, before pastures have made sufficient growth to allow grazing.

Calving has passed the midpoint in several areas. Lambing is nearing completion in the smaller flocks and is well under way in the larger flocks.

Higher Judging Standards Goal Of Clinic

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Uniformity and higher standards in livestock judging were the goals for 100 entrants who registered Monday for the two day University of Nebraska County Fair Livestock Judging Clinic.

Judging contestants began their course by selecting on-hoof winners in a carcass class that was slaughtered immediately after the live judging to let contestants inspect the animals on-the-rail in the NU Meats Department Tuesday afternoon.

A new feature of the two day event was a "beauty demonstration" or cattle blocking demonstration Monday evening that showed the judges the methods of making the most use of an animal's hair in preparing the animal to look it's best when entering the show ring.

Official judges for the placing of livestock classes used in the clinic were: W. N. "Bill" Anderson, West Liberty, Iowa, cattle classes; Archie Whiet, Fremont, Geo. A. Hormel Co., swine classes; and the veteran NU sheepman and judging instructor Prof. M. A. Alexander, sheep classes.

Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben was cosponsor of the event with the university by underwriting part of the expenses of the clinic.

The judging student with the highest over-all judging score compiled during the two day event will receive a plaque while the next 10 top judges will be awarded ribbons with special distinction for the top individual in the sheep, swine and cattle divisions.

Police Value Missing Coins At $500,000

Omaha (AP)—A collection of ancient Greek coins estimated by police to be worth about $500,000 was taken in a burglary at the home of Dr. Hewitt Judd in Omaha.

Detectives said thieves forced a sliding glass door and took the coin collection plus $5,000 in cash from a vault in a basement recreation room. From a bedroom upstairs two suitcases, a collection of jewelry including diamond earrings, platinum and gold rings and 13 pieces of ceremonial jade were taken. The vault door, behind a sliding wall panel, was punched, detectives said.

The 500-piece coin collection dating back to 700 B. C. is said to be among the best private collections in the country. Dr. Judd would neither confirm nor deny the value placed on the collection by police but said "It is certainly one of the world's largest."

Dr. Judd said his insurance company plans to offer a generous reward for the return of the collection.

"It's a highly specialized collection," he said, "and the persons who stole it might be persuaded to return it if they can't dispose of it for money."

$200 In Securities Taken By Burglars

Burglars stole an estimated $200 in securities from Natkin and Co., 1400 Furnas, Sunday night.

Maly Broke Both Legs In Plane Crash

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP)—Eight Americans, including a Nebraska doctor and his wife, lost on air flights across the northern jungles of Brazil have reached the seaport of Belem where two of the Americans were reported hospitalized.

The U.S. Embassy here said Dr. James Maly of Fullerton, Neb., suffered two broken legs and Frank Straathof of Arcadia, Calif., suffered a back injury.

The Embassy said the eight took off March 29 from Brasilia, the capital, in two light planes on the 1,250 mile flight to Manaus, an Amazon River port.

The Brazilian Air Force said one of the planes went down with engine trouble near Barrado Sao Manoel, 950 miles northwest of Brasilia, and that the other crashed on landing to help the crippled plane.

In Washington, State Department officials said both planes ran out of gas over the Cururu jungles.

The Embassy said that Mrs. Maly escaped with minor injuries.

Youths Sought In Kearney Knifing

Kearney (AP) — Police in Kearney were searching Monday for two youths wanted in connection with a knifing which followed a dance Sunday night.

Jim Travers, 25, of Kearney was reported in serious condition in a Kearney hospital with abdominal knife wounds. He told police the two youths who knifed him about 1 a.m. Monday were about 18 years of age and appeared to be of Mexican descent.

Mebus Joining NU Veterinary Science Staff

A former Kansas State University faculty member has been appointed by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents to the staff of the Department of Veterinary Science, effective July 1.

Dr. Mebus

He is Dr. Charles A. Mebus, who will assume responsibilities for histopathology work in the department. Dr. Mebus is a member of the board of the American College of Veterinary Pathology. From 1963-65, he served as associate professor of veterinary pathology at Kansas State, and was a staff assistant from 1960-63. From 1958-60, he was in general practice as a veterinarian at Dover, Delaware.

Dr. Mebus, who will hold the rank of professor at Nebraska, received his M.S. and PH.D. degree from Kansas State University in 1962 and 1963, respectively. He received his D.V.M. degree from Cornell University in 1956.

Dr. M. J. Twiehaus, chairman of the Department of Veterinary Science, said the appointment of Dr. Mebus will fulfill a long-standing need of the department to more thoroughly investigate the pathogenesis or development of disease agents in the body of animals.

1,000 Cudahy Workers Get Discharge Notices

. . . Permanent Closing Of Plant Considered

Omaha (AP)—Discharge notices have been sent to more than 1,000 members employed by the Omaha plant of Cudahy Packing Company and the firm is considering permanently closing the plant, Edward Cudahy, president and chairman of the board, said Monday.

Cudahy's statement followed a special meeting of the board of directors. The plant has been closed by a labor dispute since last Wednesday.

Anton Armenta, president of Local 60 of the United Packinghouse, Food and Allied workers, which represents all production workers at the plant, called the move "irresponsible" and "a deliberate attempt on the part of the company to confuse the issues and institute a fear campaign." He said it is "a direct violation of the contract that is in effect between the company and the union."

Cudahy said the board had instructed him to consider these possibilities concerning the future of the plant: continuation of the operation; sale or lease; abandondment.

Cudahy said the recent trouble, which the company termed a strike and the union described as a lockout "and a long series of similarly unlawful work stopages" make it impossible for him to offer any encouragement regarding the resumption of operations at the highly automated $4.5 million plant opened late in 1961.

Cudahy said the principal reason that a permanent shutdown is being considered is "economic difficulties brought about by the unwarranted irresponsibility of union leadership." He said this has been limited to Local 60 at Omaha. The firm works with 88 locals of 10 unions at 23 locations "and only local 60 members have struck again and again and always in violation of contractural obligations."

Armenta said total employment at the plant, including non-union workers is 1,796 but of 1,150 to 1,200 workers represented by the union, some are on vacation and leave and are not involved.

The current labor trouble started when several members of a cleanup crew were dismissed a week ago in a company efficiency program. A study has been conducted by a management consulting firm to recommend cost-saving measures. This study and other efforts of management to cut labor costs have been points of dispute for several months.

How Vital Is Background

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It would seem that those in the profession of psychiatry might find much more than the average person in the weekend activities of President Johnson. But even the average layman can catch some of the significance of the President's action in going to Texas and the little school he attended as a boy to sign the nation's new aid to education bill.

The Humble Beginning

The bill is an historic step, an entry into elementary and secondary education, and it was signed in historic circumstances. There in Texas for the signing were boyhood classmates of the President and the teacher who taught him the three R's. The President sat at an old-fashioned desk, the kind he once knew as a youngster, to affix his signature to the new aid to education bill. It was not an unusual thing for Mr. Johnson to do because he is from a humble background. He is now a wealthy man but he did not start out in life as such. He knew want from experience and it has obviously had a tremendous influence upon his life.

In the eyes of some, the President probably appears as a sentimentalist at times and he may not be so far from it. But the situation involves more than sentiment. What his past has given him is an acute social consciousness. Being closely acquainted with adversity, he knows what the lack of opportunity can mean to the individual.

It does not necessarily follow that because he has conquered adversity, he should have no special concern for it. For one thing, he probably realizes that, while he has made a success of his own life, he still lacks many things. By now, he has discovered, as much as anything, his shortcomings as well as his strong points.

Knowing your weaknesses can often be a good measure of your strength. Mr. Johnson is as keen a politician as this nation has ever produced but he has never given the impression of being a highly polished man. He is far from an uneducated man but does not seem to have the immediate grasp of facts in fields of history, philosophy, etc., that some of his predecessors have had. His administration has given the impression that he is much more at home and more effective in regard to the domestic scene than he is at international affairs. Without any intention of criticism, it would be most surprising if Mr. Johnson did not wish at times that he was more intimately acquainted than he is with some matters and some subjects.

Just the opposite of criticism is the significance of any such feeling. The drastic thing would be to have a president who recognized no personal weaknesses, at all. In such a man as this, the nation would find many matters of concern. The man who feels all-confident is one who seldom seeks advice, seldom looks for new facts and seldom takes the time to study a subject. He is prone to jump to conclusions and to create conflicts where none might otherwise have existed. In short, he is a dangerous sort of man to have around, particularly in such a sensitive place as the presidency of the United States of America.

Now, how does all of this fit in with the current administration and the school aid bill? It is because the President recognizes the gaps in his own background that he wants to do something to fill those gaps for the next generation. This is why he feels as he does about education. He believes, and rightly so, that it is by far the best chance this nation has of producing members of society who are reasonable, capable and dedicated.

Additionally, the President knows from his own background that where one man beats the odds in life that might be against him, there are thousands who do not. Certainly, to achieve the presidency is a mark of distinction for any man and Mr. Johnson could be forgiven whatever pride he has in having done that.

Way Made Easier

What he knows is that many men and women who came from a background quite similar to his have achieved but a small fraction of what has come his way. In his aid to education measure and other social legislation, he wants to make it easier for others to climb the ladder of success than it was for him. When you get all done with it, it is not nearly so much a matter of sentimentality as it is experience, understanding and compassion. The President is a man whose administration is deeply marked by his own life.

Thus, we are experiencing times today that had their beginnings, not in November of 1963 when Mr. Johnson suddenly became president or in 1964 when he was elected to that office, but many years ago when Mr. Johnson was a small boy in the vast rural lands of Texas. Because he is president, his heritage is becoming the heritage of many millions of people, most of whom will never know or ever see him.

Taxes And The Computers

These new computers are putting tax honesty on an impersonal plane.

The day is about over when a congressman or a senator can strike a blow for economy, eliminating thorough tax investigation. That always provides a field day for the minority who like to escape the full tax burden. Far too few checker uppers.

A study of taxation around the world shows that Americans are the most honest of all when it comes to reporting for income taxes. And now that computers are coming into the field that record will not fall. They have imperishable memories and once they have been properly informed you can't beat them.

The United States thus far has seven regional centers whose principal job is to make accurate tape recordings of tax information. These tapes are then sent to a national computer center at Martinsburg, West Virginia, where in a few minutes thousands of returns can be checked for both mathematical accuracy as well as honesty. We presume the degree of perfection will finally be reached when business and individual taxes can be figured by the computers with bills being sent to all for the exact amount due.

Business returns are already going to Martinsburg. By 1967 it is expected that individual incomes will be subject to the treatment.

Most people will welcome this new departure because most people do not defy the tax laws. And they are beginning to realize that the tax dodger does not beat the tax gatherer, but forces a higher levy which his honest neighbors have to put up.

One Of The More Important

The firing off of space rockets and satellites has become such a recurring event that we are missing the unusual significance of some of them.

One was the successful launching of the Early Bird, a communications satellite. It carried no human beings, is not destined for the moon, and carried no military significance. It was not even the first communications satellite. But it probably will mean more to the rank and file of people in our generations than any.

Early Bird is the latest and most complete communications satellite, scheduled to follow the equatorial route and thus make international communications a total reality. By May or June it should supply dependable television and telephone broadcasts between Europe and the United States. And in a few years this service will be extended around the globe. The delay will be required to get adequate ground equipment in place.

This means that for the first time in history we can have instantaneous communication with anyone, wherever he may be. Noteworthy events on some back street in Europe will take on significance equal to such an event in our own neighborhood.

The sociological effect of this will be enormous. By necessity international communication has been largely hearsay and naturally subject to interpretation. Soon we will know for sure. It is bound to have an effect on our judgments and on our general view of things.

Early Bird is a product of Communications Satellite Corporation, our newest public utility. It is private enterprise assured of government cooperation.

We opened a new and exciting chapter in world relations when we fired off Early Bird.

Interest Law Of Merit

Passage of an 18 percent interest rate law for installment sales, as now seems likely, would give the Legislature a commendable record on this subject. To date, the rate has fluctuated between 16 percent and 18 percent, with the latter figure now appearing to be the most popular.

It should be remembered that either of these two figures would be a substantial improvement over old laws which once allowed up to a 24 percent rate. It is a fact that 18 percent represents no special bargain to the buyer but it does assure the general public of the continuation of a credit practice much in demand.

What the Legislature has faced in this matter is the difficulty at arriving at a rate protective of the public interest and yet great enough that it would not act in restraint of trade. Thus, senators have had to consider both the lender and the borrower and try to strike a happy medium. It is to their credit that they have gone to no extreme in either direction.

It still is hoped that this measure, when adopted, contains a provision calling for the full disclosure of interest charges. The complexity of such disclosure has been used as an argument against the practice but there is no complexity in the statement of charges in terms of simple annual rates. Merchants who want to talk only in terms of dollars rather than rate charges are, for the most part, practicing a form of deceit and this should not be permitted.

Khrushchev Couldn't Carry An Election

WASHINGTON — In the Western world, great curiosity persists regarding Nikita Khrushchev — where he is, what he's doing, whether he is philosophical about his retirement. But in Moscow Mr. K. is regarded about the way Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the United States — as an over-age, retired political leader. He does not arouse much interest.

This in itself is something of a triumph for the new Democratic trend in the Soviet, and many Russians will tell you frankly that they are proud of the peaceful non-violent manner in which Khruschev was retired. They regard it as a trend toward the Democratic process.

His retirement, of course, was not democracy as Americans understand it — namely, by popular vote; but rather by committee vote. However, it's significant that, if there had been a popular vote, Khrushchev probably would have been voted out of office.

* * *

Most Western observers, and for that matter many Soviet leaders, considered him highly popular with the Russian people. His wisecracks, his Russian proverbs, his fondness for mingling with the people were considered a guarantee of popularity, and immediately after his retirement the new leaders of the Kremlin were a little worried as to how the Russian people would react.

But they discovered that Khrushchev was not popular at all. In the first place he had been in office too long. Second, he was charged with non-fulfillment of many promises. Third, the Russian people were irked over his foreign aid program. Especially the large amount of money siphoned into Egypt for the Aswan dam.

* * *

The man who dominated the Russian scene for ten years is not taking his retirement as philosophically as reported in the press. He looks thinner and has aged.

He is living about forty miles from Moscow in a new dacha supplied him by the Soviet government. He has every luxury available—servants, two guards, automobiles. He is able to hunt, which he enjoys, and he is doing a lot of reading. He doesn't fish. He once told me that he was too impatient a man to fish.

Khrushchev comes into town about once a week to see his grandchildren. He has an apartment in Moscow where Mrs. Khrushchev resides more than he does.

The Soviet leaders were anxious to have the world know that he was healthy and living quietly in retirement. This was why they tipped off Western newspapermen prior to his voting in the recent Moscow election.

WASHINGTON — The date is soon to be set for a trial likely to make political history, for at issue is an unprecedented form of political character assassination.

The four men indicted in Los Angeles for criminal conspiracy to libel Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., are to have a preliminary hearing. The widely circulated affidavit which is the basis of the indictment was shown by the district attorney's investigators in evidence before the grand jury to be wholly false. A new low in political smears, it alleged that Kuchel had been arrested on a morals charge.

Kuchel has long been the target in California of the extreme right in his party because of his moderate-to-liberal stand. What is astonishing in the light of last November's election and in view of the latest attempt to destroy him is that these same elements are retaining their grip on major party organizations and offices.

* * *

In a three-way split in the California Republican Assembly recently Cyril Stevenson Jr., a Berkeley realtor and a militant conservative, was elected president. William E. Exline, spokesman for a minority of 22 of the delegates, pointed out that the convention had failed to adopt a meaningful resolution against discrimination in voting rights. The majority of delegates had, however, approved the so-called Liberty Amendment calling for a constitutional amendment to repeal the income tax. But Exline went on to make a remarkable disclosure;

"In the convention we were solicited for a most curious cause. We were asked to help two of the four men currently under indictment for conspiracy to libel Senator Kuchel, the greatest vote-getter in modern Republican politics."

After a protest at the start of the convention extremerightist pamphlets were removed from the assembly headquarters. One addressed to "Dear Fellow Patriots" also contained an appeal to help two of the indicted men, describing them as "two of California's most active and dedicated constitutional conservatives." The two are John F. Fergus, who resigned as a public relations executive for Eversharp-Schick, Inc., at the time of his indictment, and Jack D. Clemmons, a police sergeant who resigned after nearly 15 years of service when the indictment was returned.

* * *

According to the testimony of one of the district attorney's investigators, Fergus said the purpose of the affidavit "was to get rid of Kuchel." The other two indicted were Norman H. Krause, a former police officer, and Francis A. Cappell, of New Jersey, publisher of the Herald of Freedom. According to testimony, Cappell has a connection with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee.

Clemmons and Fergus both declined to testify. Fergus' employer, Patrick J. Frawley Jr., of Evershap-Schick, after a preliminary discussion testified that he knew nothing about the affidavit until he was told of it by Fergus.

Patchwork Prairie Country

April took her broom this morning and filled a shiny new pail with rain. Then she began to clean the earth of its winter slush and grime. She brushed vigorously with long sweeping strokes across the gray leaden sky. When she was done, little patches of blue shone through.

Then she scrubbed the faces of the crocus and washed the tender green tulip leaves that peeped through the green grass. She coaxed the meek pussy willows out into the sunlight and turned a bunny loose.

But that was not all! She beckoned to the south wind and cunningly tossed forth the bees. As if that were not enough, she perched seven robins in the apple tree and ordered them to sing.

Cheerily! Cheerily! Cheep, cheep, cheep!

I heard them chirping early this morning. Mindful of her task to put people into a gay, happy mood, I cooperated with her and put on my best early-morning smile.

* * *

One night recently when the rain dripped from the roof, we listened to an orchestra play on TV. The group who entertained us didn't have sporadic drum beats or "Yeah! Yeah! Yeah!" thrown in at the end of every line.

Such songs as "Woodchoppers Ball," "Harbor Lights" and "Cecelia" reached every corner of our living room. The rich, smooth tones reached me.

"It's good to know there were better days," I said as I leaned back in my chair, overcome by the quiet mood the music had evoked.

The Farmer added, "We are the lost generation—the forgotten ones. Today's music is not for our ears and today's dances are not for our creaking bones."

"Therefore," I said, with emphasis, "let us enjoy our bit of heaven now before the next show comes on with its finger-snapping singers and its chicken-pickin' guitar strummers."

Just as the song, "Dear Hearts," was completed, I added one more thought.

"We are squares, you know, for professing our desire for this type of music."

It was a sort of tongue-in-cheek kind of remark, but sometimes it's so-o-o-o good to be a square, especially when sleep is only a wink away and someone is softly singing "The Tennessee Waltz."

* * *

Looking about our yard between showers, I noted the bare spots in the bluegrass. The grass seed should have been scattered before the rains, but I never think of those things until I read it in a gardener's column or see someone at the task.

Generally I am without seed when I am reminded of it and when I have the seed, it is raining and I cannot sow the seed. Come tomorrow, I will purchase a pound or two of seed, gingerly put it into The Farmer's hands and suggest he scatter it.

The last time I replanted the bare spots, it grew up in bunches, leaving nice little barren spots around the bunches. It seemed every ground squirrel in the county chose one of those protective places to set up housekeeping.

It was very disconcerting to look out across the lawn and see two beady little eyes, a pair of ears and a furry head peeking up out of the tufts. I always felt they were laughing at me.

The tulips and daffodils are pushing toward the sun. They are growing slowly but even so. I cannot wait until plump buds begin to appear. The cloudy, gloomy days of the past week have made my eyes eager for a spot of beauty.

The buds of the lilac bushes are swelling. When I think of their perfumed blossoms filling the spring air with delicate fragrance, my nose becomes anxious for their scent.

My ears have been partially satisfied since some of the song birds have returned. In fact, it will not be long until it will be time for the shouting. All the preliminary growing and budding will reach their epitome of development and burst into bloom, the birds will gather for their rendition, and I will shout at the top of my voice, "Hurrah for Spring!"

The Small Farm

Lincoln, Neb.

Kermit Gordon, director of the Budget and former member of the Council of Economic Advisors, has written a very challenging article upon the relationship of the various assistance programs to the prosperity of the nation. The article is very well written and Mr. Gordon presents his case in a persuasive manner.

Since I read the article, which appeared in the January 9 issue of the Saturday Review, I have been distressed about what Mr. Gordon has to say about the reduction of the current number of farm units from 3½ million to one million. This latter one million farmers, so he says, receive 80% of the total farm assistance and have an annual income of $9,500. The remaining 2½ million farmers receive only 20% of the annual assistance. This means, of course, that members of this latter group have a lesser income and, paradoxical as it may at first seem, are in greatest need of assistance. Mr. Gordon, moreover, contends that the members of this low-income group can hardly be expected to rise to the level of commercial farmers.

The elimination of all commodity support programs would, according to Mr. Gordon, "cause a sharp fall in the income of all farmers." Speaking of the 2½ million low-income farmers, he says: "Their needs cannot be met by commodity programs. Rather, they require assistance in the painful transition to non-farm jobs, to which most of them will certainly have to move . . ." This latter statement of Mr. Gordon's distresses me grealy.

There are a number of reasons why his statement bothers me. (1) Mr. Gordon, I fear, has been around Madison Avenue and has absorbed the notion prevalent there for a number of years that if commodity farmer assistance programs were eliminated, the country would be much better off. To anyone who has thought about the matter, this argument is full of fallacies. (2; Mr. Gordon forgets that the 2½ million farmers and their children trained in non-farm jobs would throw an additional 10 million into the labor market. Mr. Gordon, furthermore, fails to realize the change that would come to many communities and villages by doing away with the non-commercial farmer throughout the plains states.

It was my privilege to grow up on a farm about two miles from a flourishing village of about 600 persons in northeast South Dakota. This village had two banks, two drug stores, two hardware stores, two farm implement dealers, several grocery stores and two churches. Then came the automobile. The population today is fewer than 150. The banks, the drug stores, hardware stores, etc. are all gone. Only the churches remain.

When these tragic shifts take place among our people, it seems to me that our country has lost something, perhaps much in its heritage. So I hope we may keep the small farm, though non-commercial, and all that goes with it, for it is there where much of our nation's true greatness was born.

Commitment Laws

Lincoln, Neb.

The report about the Lincoln man who apparently took his life while sheriff's deputies searched the house, trying to serve him a mental health warrant, points up the desperate need to revise Nebraska's mental health commitment laws. It seems to me that at least two lives have been needlessly lost within the past six months because of our archaic commitment laws.

Almost certainly the young man who last October knelt down in front of an oncoming train could have been saved by enlightened treatment and confinement during the period of his depression. In this recent case, one can imagine how distressing it would be to an already depressed person to hear deputies searching the house for him.

A bill to revise commitment laws was recently killed in legislative committee. At present no alternative proposals are under consideration. How many more lives must be wasted before the Legislature acts?

Partisanship

Ainsworth, Neb.

Frank O'Connell's partisan attack upon our fellow Legionnaire, Leo Beck, should be resented by all members of the American Legion.

Leo Beck has persistently said that we should all attempt to save the Lincoln Veterans Hospital on the basis of need. He has also said that our best chance of saving our Veterans Hospital at Lincoln was by showing and proving that need. What could be more basically sound? Leo Beck has said that any attempt to inject partisanship into the matter would only becloud the issues. Again, what could be more basically sound than to strive to save the hospital on that basis?

Further, the attempt by Mr. O'Connell to belittle our governor who has strived with all his might to save our hospital, or to infer that Governor Morrison and Leo Beck are partners in some type of political collusion in their efforts to save the Lincoln Veterans Hospital, is the rankest type of political partisanship.

How Vital Is Background

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It would seem that those in the profession of psychiatry might find much more than the average person in the weekend activities of President Johnson. But even the average layman can catch some of the significance of the President's action in going to Texas and the little school he attended as a boy to sign the nation's new aid to education bill.

The Humble Beginning

The bill is an historic step, an entry into elementary and secondary education, and it was signed in historic circumstances. There in Texas for the signing were boyhood classmates of the President and the teacher who taught him the three R's. The President sat at an old-fashioned desk, the kind he once knew as a youngster, to affix his signature to the new aid to education bill. It was not an unusual thing for Mr. Johnson to do because he is from a humble background. He is now a wealthy man but he did not start out in life as such. He knew want from experience and it has obviously had a tremendous influence upon his life.

In the eyes of some, the President probably appears as a sentimentalist at times and he may not be so far from it. But the situation involves more than sentiment. What his past has given him is an acute social consciousness. Being closely acquainted with adversity, he knows what the lack of opportunity can mean to the individual.

It does not necessarily follow that because he has conquered adversity, he should have no special concern for it. For one thing, he probably realizes that, while he has made a success of his own life, he still lacks many things. By now, he has discovered, as much as anything, his shortcomings as well as his strong points.

Knowing your weaknesses can often be a good measure of your strength. Mr. Johnson is as keen a politician as this nation has ever produced but he has never given the impression of being a highly polished man. He is far from an uneducated man but does not seem to have the immediate grasp of facts in fields of history, philosophy, etc., that some of his predecessors have had. His administration has given the impression that he is much more at home and more effective in regard to the domestic scene than he is at international affairs. Without any intention of criticism, it would be most surprising if Mr. Johnson did not wish at times that he was more intimately acquainted than he is with some matters and some subjects.

Just the opposite of criticism is the significance of any such feeling. The drastic thing would be to have a president who recognized no personal weaknesses, at all. In such a man as this, the nation would find many matters of concern. The man who feels all-confident is one who seldom seeks advice, seldom looks for new facts and seldom takes the time to study a subject. He is prone to jump to conclusions and to create conflicts where none might otherwise have existed. In short, he is a dangerous sort of man to have around, particularly in such a sensitive place as the presidency of the United States of America.

Now, how does all of this fit in with the current administration and the school aid bill? It is because the President recognizes the gaps in his own background that he wants to do something to fill those gaps for the next generation. This is why he feels as he does about education. He believes, and rightly so, that it is by far the best chance this nation has of producing members of society who are reasonable, capable and dedicated.

Additionally, the President knows from his own background that where one man beats the odds in life that might be against him, there are thousands who do not. Certainly, to achieve the presidency is a mark of distinction for any man and Mr. Johnson could be forgiven whatever pride he has in having done that.

Way Made Easier

What he knows is that many men and women who came from a background quite similar to his have achieved but a small fraction of what has come his way. In his aid to education measure and other social legislation, he wants to make it easier for others to climb the ladder of success than it was for him. When you get all done with it, it is not nearly so much a matter of sentimentality as it is experience, understanding and compassion. The President is a man whose administration is deeply marked by his own life.

Thus, we are experiencing times today that had their beginnings, not in November of 1963 when Mr. Johnson suddenly became president or in 1964 when he was elected to that office, but many years ago when Mr. Johnson was a small boy in the vast rural lands of Texas. Because he is president, his heritage is becoming the heritage of many millions of people, most of whom will never know or ever see him.

Taxes And The Computers

These new computers are putting tax honesty on an impersonal plane.

The day is about over when a congressman or a senator can strike a blow for economy, eliminating thorough tax investigation. That always provides a field day for the minority who like to escape the full tax burden. Far too few checker uppers.

A study of taxation around the world shows that Americans are the most honest of all when it comes to reporting for income taxes. And now that computers are coming into the field that record will not fall. They have imperishable memories and once they have been properly informed you can't beat them.

The United States thus far has seven regional centers whose principal job is to make accurate tape recordings of tax information. These tapes are then sent to a national computer center at Martinsburg, West Virginia, where in a few minutes thousands of returns can be checked for both mathematical accuracy as well as honesty. We presume the degree of perfection will finally be reached when business and individual taxes can be figured by the computers with bills being sent to all for the exact amount due.

Business returns are already going to Martinsburg. By 1967 it is expected that individual incomes will be subject to the treatment.

Most people will welcome this new departure because most people do not defy the tax laws. And they are beginning to realize that the tax dodger does not beat the tax gatherer, but forces a higher levy which his honest neighbors have to put up.

One Of The More Important

The firing off of space rockets and satellites has become such a recurring event that we are missing the unusual significance of some of them.

One was the successful launching of the Early Bird, a communications satellite. It carried no human beings, is not destined for the moon, and carried no military significance. It was not even the first communications satellite. But it probably will mean more to the rank and file of people in our generations than any.

Early Bird is the latest and most complete communications satellite, scheduled to follow the equatorial route and thus make international communications a total reality. By May or June it should supply dependable television and telephone broadcasts between Europe and the United States. And in a few years this service will be extended around the globe. The delay will be required to get adequate ground equipment in place.

This means that for the first time in history we can have instantaneous communication with anyone, wherever he may be. Noteworthy events on some back street in Europe will take on significance equal to such an event in our own neighborhood.

The sociological effect of this will be enormous. By necessity international communication has been largely hearsay and naturally subject to interpretation. Soon we will know for sure. It is bound to have an effect on our judgments and on our general view of things.

Early Bird is a product of Communications Satellite Corporation, our newest public utility. It is private enterprise assured of government cooperation.

We opened a new and exciting chapter in world relations when we fired off Early Bird.

Interest Law Of Merit

Passage of an 18 percent interest rate law for installment sales, as now seems likely, would give the Legislature a commendable record on this subject. To date, the rate has fluctuated between 16 percent and 18 percent, with the latter figure now appearing to be the most popular.

It should be remembered that either of these two figures would be a substantial improvement over old laws which once allowed up to a 24 percent rate. It is a fact that 18 percent represents no special bargain to the buyer but it does assure the general public of the continuation of a credit practice much in demand.

What the Legislature has faced in this matter is the difficulty at arriving at a rate protective of the public interest and yet great enough that it would not act in restraint of trade. Thus, senators have had to consider both the lender and the borrower and try to strike a happy medium. It is to their credit that they have gone to no extreme in either direction.

It still is hoped that this measure, when adopted, contains a provision calling for the full disclosure of interest charges. The complexity of such disclosure has been used as an argument against the practice but there is no complexity in the statement of charges in terms of simple annual rates. Merchants who want to talk only in terms of dollars rather than rate charges are, for the most part, practicing a form of deceit and this should not be permitted.

The article is very well written and Mr. Gordon presents his case in a persuasive manner.

Since I read the article, which appeared in the January 9 issue of the Saturday Review, I have been distressed about what Mr. Gordon has to say about the reduction of the current number of farm units from 3½ million to one million. This latter one million farmers, so he says, receive 80% of the total farm assistance and have an annual income of $9,500. The remaining 2½ million farmers receive only 20% of the annual assistance. This means, of course, that members of this latter group have a lesser income and, paradoxical as it may at first seem, are in greatest need of assistance. Mr. Gordon, moreover, contends that the members of this low-income group can hardly be expected to rise to the level of commercial farmers.

The elimination of all commodity support programs would, according to Mr. Gordon, "cause a sharp fall in the income of all farmers." Speaking of the 2½ million low-income farmers, he says: "Their needs cannot be met by commodity programs. Rather, they require assistance in the painful transition to non-farm jobs, to which most of them will certainly have to move . . ." This latter statement of Mr. Gordon's distresses me grealy.

There are a number of reasons why his statement bothers me. (1) Mr. Gordon, I fear, has been around Madison Avenue and has absorbed the notion prevalent there for a number of years that if commodity farmer assistance programs were eliminated, the country would be much better off. To anyone who has thought about the matter, this argument is full of fallacies. (2; Mr. Gordon forgets that the 2½ million farmers and their children trained in non-farm jobs would throw an additional 10 million into the labor market. Mr. Gordon, furthermore, fails to realize the change that would come to many communities and villages by doing away with the non-commercial farmer throughout the plains states.

It was my privilege to grow up on a farm about two miles from a flourishing village of about 600 persons in northeast South Dakota. This village had two banks, two drug stores, two hardware stores, two farm implement dealers, several grocery stores and two churches. Then came the automobile. The population today is fewer than 150. The banks, the drug stores, hardware stores, etc. are all gone. Only the churches remain.

When these tragic shifts take place among our people, it seems to me that our country has lost something, perhaps much in its heritage. So I hope we may keep the small farm, though non-commercial, and all that goes with it, for it is there where much of our nation's true greatness was born.

Commitment Laws

Lincoln, Neb.

The report about the Lincoln man who apparently took his life while sheriff's deputies searched the house, trying to serve him a mental health warrant, points up the desperate need to revise Nebraska's mental health commitment laws. It seems to me that at least two lives have been needlessly lost within the past six months because of our archaic commitment laws.

Almost certainly the young man who last October knelt down in front of an oncoming train could have been saved by enlightened treatment and confinement during the period of his depression. In this recent case, one can imagine how distressing it would be to an already depressed person to hear deputies searching the house for him.

A bill to revise commitment laws was recently killed in legislative committee. At present no alternative proposals are under consideration. How many more lives must be wasted before the Legislature acts?

Partisanship

Ainsworth, Neb.

Frank O'Connell's partisan attack upon our fellow Legionnaire, Leo Beck, should be resented by all members of the American Legion.

Leo Beck has persistently said that we should all attempt to save the Lincoln Veterans Hospital on the basis of need. He has also said that our best chance of saving our Veterans Hospital at Lincoln was by showing and proving that need. What could be more basically sound? Leo Beck has said that any attempt to inject partisanship into the matter would only becloud the issues. Again, what could be more basically sound than to strive to save the hospital on that basis?

Further, the attempt by Mr. O'Connell to belittle our governor who has strived with all his might to save our hospital, or to infer that Governor Morrison and Leo Beck are partners in some type of political collusion in their efforts to save the Lincoln Veterans Hospital, is the rankest type of political partisanship.

Old Masters Program Utilizes Services Of Illustrious Elders

By ROBERT PETERSON

An imaginative technique for utilizing successful and sagacious elders is the Old Masters program at Purdue University. Each year since 1949 the university has invited a dozen outstanding men and women —mostly retired—to spend three days on campus as an Old Master.

On arrival, these distinquished elders are given the best rooms on campus and student hosts and hostesses are assigned. Then they are given red carpet treatment as they tour the university and meet faculty and students.

So as to bring each visitor into personal contact with as many students as possible, informal receptions and discussion sessions are arranged. Each visitor lunches daily with a different group of students

In the afternoon he meets for an hour of informal discussion with another group. He dines with still others, and then spends the evening in stimulating conversation with another group.

The visitors attend no faculty meetings and give no lectures. Their function is simply to be themselves and talk in relaxed fashion with as many students as possible. By so doing they help students create in their minds a picture of the wise and successful elder which they themselves may one day become.

Who conceived the program? It's the brainchild of Lawrence W. Wallace — himself a remarkable elder who, at 84, is still working full-time as conference leader of the top management seminar at the U.S Army Training Command in Rock Island, Ill.

"The idea came to me years ago," Dr. Wallace told me recently, "when I found myself pondering the growing number of students and elder citizens.

"Soon I was visualizing two large glass bowls—one filling up with eager young men and women about to enter careers, and the other filling up with cultivated successful people ending careers

"It seemed to me there should be a catalyst which would somehow link the consciousness of the eager, aspiring youngsters to the accumulated wisdom and admirable social graces of the other.

"One of my friends was the president of Purdue University, so I discussed the idea with him and he felt the same way. With his backing, the Old Masters program was approved and made a project of the Student Council."

Who are those invited to serve as Old Masters? "They are exemplary older people from all walks of life whose names and accomplishments are meaningful to our students—retired publishers, authors, educators, corporation presidents and government officials."

Have other universities latched on to the idea? "Not to my knowledge. Of course they often bring eminent elders to the campus as lecturers. But that's a more personal approach. We feel the Old Masters program meets a special need by giving students the chance to be hosts to prominent elders and to meet and talk with them in an intimate, relaxed fashion which can't help but wield an uplifting influence."

Here's a great idea for schools everywhere. An Old Masters program costs virtually nothing, but offers an unusual form of recognition for illustrious elders and gives students personal identification with men and women who are worthy examples of human accomplishment.

Lobbyist Control Bill Passed

A bill prescribing new and more explicit controls on lobbyists was passed on a 34-9 vote in the State Legislature Monday, and goes next to Gov. Frank Morrison for signature into law.

Present statutes require lobbyists to register with and make reports to the secretary of state, but legal experts have said the law is so vague and toothless as to be virtually impossible of enforcement.

LB302, introduced by Sens. Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth and Elvin Adamson of Valentine, vests control of lobbyists in the State Legislature instead.

The bill requires a $5 fee of lobbyists registering with the Legislature, defines corrupt practices which lobbyists may not engage in, requires reporting of money spent and received and provides for determination of who needs to register and who does not.

Violations of the act could bring imprisonment up to six months or a fine of up to $500 or both.

Voting against the bill on final reading were Sens. Richard Lysinger of Ravenna, Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, Harold T. Moylan of Omaha, Herb Nore of Genoa, Chet Paxton of Thedford, William R. Skarda Jr. and George Syas, both of Omaha.

The full list of bills passed Monday:

LB731—Increasing salary ceilings for members of the State Insurance Department actuarial and examining staff. (Skarda) (27-12)

LB302 Revising regulations on lobbyists and requiring registration with the Legislature instead of the secretary of state (Ruhnke, Adamson) (34-9)

LB432 Increasing the imprisonment penalty for bank embezzlement from one to 10 years, to three to 15 years (Adamson) (45-0).

LB248—Increasing fees payable to jurors and witnesses in justice, county or municipal courts. (Bauer, Carstens) (45-0)

Legislative Bills Introduced

Bills introduced in the Legislature Monday

LB384 (Bauer, at governor's request)—Increasing from four to six years the terms of office of members of airport authorities, except that terms of Omaha authority members would be increased to five years

Never Take a Laxative Again!

New Miracle Regulator Keeps Waste Soft—So Bowels Move Naturally

New York, N.Y. (Special)—After 12 years' research, scientists have discovered a wonder-working substance that corrects constipation entirely without laxatives!

Doctors say most constipation occurs when waste loses moisture in the colon—becomes dry, hard, difficult to move. To give relief, laxatives have to force action by flushing, irritating or distending the intestine.

The new miracle substance—known medically as dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate—works in a completely different way. It is not a laxative! It simply makes natural moisture in the colon moisten and soften dry, hard waste more effectively. Then normal elimination follows naturally. Thus by working only on waste, not on you, the substance corrects constipation and restores regularity as no laxative can

Now comes the "Teardown Room."

This is the "Teardown Room" at the 4,011-acre General Motors Proving Ground at Milford, Michigan. Where —day after day for the next few weeks—more than 6,000 GM engineers and technicians will study, analyze and check 45 cars that are spread out part by part on long examining tables. The 1965 model cars that took part in a racking 36,000-mile test run.

The real test

This "autopsy" is one of the most revealing in the automotive world. To find out about wear. To find out about maintenance. And to find out about things like: What happens to a brake that's been applied 20,000 times? To a suspension that's been through years of punishment in a matter of weeks?

It's a test of testing, too

And then we set about to find if the results tally with the exhaustive part-by-part testing that went on months before our Durability Run began.

You see, we test GM cars long before production. Often before many of the parts and systems ever find their way into an automobile. And, later, on "one-of-a-kind" prototype models.

We test them in the laboratory. And we test them out on roads at GM proving grounds in Michigan, Arizona and Colorado. As well as all over the country on the kind of roads you're likely to meet up with.

The long way, the hard way, the right way

It isn't the easy way. But over 40 years of experience and more than 300,000,000 test miles have convinced us it's the right way to test a car—and to improve the cars we build.

Who wins the "Big One" at Milford? And who stands to gain from these months of testing? You do. In a Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick or Cadillac that is worth more on the day you buy it, all the while you use it, and chances are, when you go to trade it in.

General Motors cars are proved all around.

Council Pledges Its Cooperation

. . . ON BUILDING PLANS

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday pledged its cooperation with the county commissioners in carrying ahead plans to construct a joint city-county building at 10th and J approved by voters last Tuesday.

The council unanimously passed a resolution which "rescinded and repealed" a previous resolution placing bond issues for a building at 15th and O on the May 4th general election ballot.

Councilman Lloyd Hinkley said that the passage of the resolution should "clear this situation up", referring to an unfounded rumor that hinted that the city would "drag its feet" now that voters had overwhelmingly approved the J St. location.

Rumor Denied

Mayor Dean Petersen denied the credibility of such a rumor, saying that the city would "proceed very diligently, in cooperation with the commissioners, to construct the building as rapidly and efficiently as possible."

Council members indicated that in their opinion, last Tuesday's vote constituted a go-ahead for architects to complete plans for the $5 million complex.

Councilman John Mason suggested that the council immediately consider a three-point program designed to beautify the area surrounding the new building.

—Extend to the city-county building site the same zoning patterns that surround the State Capitol, in an effort to block any detrimental land use.

Ornamental Lighting

—Set up an ornamental lighting district in the area; possibly using the same type of lighting for both the Capitol and the new building.

—Plan for a "mall-type" median to run down the middle of J Street between the two seats of government.

The council asked the mayor to set up a meeting with the County Board "as soon as possible" to move ahead with plans for the project

Entire Council

Present plans call for the entire council and commission to join in the cooperative effort; with the possibility of reverting back to the original subcommittee—3 commissioners and 3 council members—that made initial plans if the full membership approach is too cumbersome

The council also discussed plans to landscape 15th St. from the Capitol north.

Council vice chairman John Comstock said that the council should have the same attitude toward the development of 15th St as that of J St

Decision Needed

In response to questions by council members city department heads said that a decision will have to be made whether to leave the present curbs on 15th where they are, on both sides of the street, divided by a 10 foot landscaped median; or eliminate on street parking in favor of a wider median.

Problems involved in developing both 15th St. and J St.:

—Eliminating parking on 15th would reduce available stalls by 280.

—J St will probably have to be widened. 15th was widened 4 years ago.

More Signals

—Both streets will require additional traffic signals

—The possibility of assessing abutting property owners for the improvements made.

The council said it will consider retaining a landscape architect to design the development of both streets.

Council Redefines Fire Resistance Standards

In one of the shortest meetings in recent months, the City Council Monday passed an ordinance redefining fire resistence standards for buildings of all categories and postponed any recommendation on a request to locate an off-sale beer license at 14th and South Sts.

The council said it decided to delay action on the license application of Vernon and Rose Hennessey until it can decide on a formula for limiting the number of package liquor and beer licenses to be allowed in the designated outlying commercial areas.

A decision might be reached by next Monday, council members said, if the city departments can come up with a workable basis for setting limits by that time.

The fire resistence ordinance, amending the building code to up-date standards for fire separation walls, maximum floor areas anf fireproofing structural materials, was passed with an emergency clause, putting it into immediate effect.

Shelved

Also shelved by the council was an ordinance extending the city limits in various areas, including the State Fairgrounds

State Fair Board members have requested a legal opinion by the state attorney general's office on the "legal effects" of city annexation of the Fairgrounds.

The council set April 19 as the date of hearing for the applications of James L. Dunbar for the transfer of an off-sale beer license from 2365 O to 332 No 48th, and A-Go-Go Liquor Co. for a package liquor license at 839½ No. 27th

State Wants 15 Writs Handled In Lower Court

The State Justice Department moved Monday to have some 15 habeas corpus cases pending in U.S District Court here sent back to the courts where they were originally tried

If the department is successful, these and perhaps other cases would go back to the state district court where it would be determined if the convicted criminals' rights were violated.

Petitions to dismiss the cases were filed in Federal Court

The action followed within hours the signing of LB836 by Governor Morrison. The bill provides for a post-conviction procedure act

At present, the habeas corpus actions may be filed directly with the Federal Court because, until Monday, Nebraska had no post-conviction remedy.

More Than 100

According to Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer there are more than 100 state Penitentiary inmates who have filed habeas corpus actions in Federal Court in efforts to be released

The Federal Court filings were prompted by recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings extending the rights of criminal suspects.

One of the motions to dismiss filed by the state Monday was in the case of Luther Wesley Wilson, who was convicted in 1958 in the slaying of Raymond Rasmussen during an Omaha liquor store robbery.

Wilson was once condemned to die in the electric chair, but the sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment by the State Parole Board

Assistant Atty Gen Richard Williams said the motions to dismiss the habeas corpus actions were filed "on the grounds that they (the inmates) now have a remedy in state courts that they can now pursue"

'No Idea'

Williams explained that federal law says the inmates must exhaust their state remedies before taking a case to the federal courts. He said he had "no idea" when Federal Judge Robert Van Pelt would rule on the motions.

If the state is successful, the Justice Department would no longer be required to fight the habeas corpus petitions in Federal Court. Instead, they would be handled by county attorneys in the district courts.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Homer Hamilton said that if Van Pelt rules favorably on these motions, "we will file the same thing in all of them."

Hamilton said "all of them" would include the habeas corpus action brought by convicted slayer Darrel Parker.

Effect Unknown

Mel Kammerlohr, another assistant attorney general, said he didn't yet know what effect a favorable ruling by Judge Van Pelt might have in Caril Ann Fugate's habeas corpus action.

Van Pelt has not yet ruled on the merits of Miss Fugate's petition, but he has held that the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark Escobedo ruling has retroactive effect.

His decision has been appealed by the state to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in St Louis, Mo where it is to be reviewed May 4.

No Plan Set Yet For Lincoln Use Of School Aid Funds

No specific plans have been considered yet for Lincoln Public School use of federal funds made available with the passage of President Johnson's $1.3-billion education bill according to Dr. Steven Watkins superintendent of schools

"We know generally what the bill provides," Watkins said, "but we don't know the criteria yet" for participating in the programs.

The bulk of the aid provided by the bill passed by the Senate Friday and signed into law by Johnson Sunday is keyed to the concept of improving education for deprived children in grade and high schools

Five Categories

The aid will be divided into five categories improvement of schools classes, and instructional needs including higher teacher salaries in areas of low-income families, improvement of library facilities, enrichment centers including guidance and specialized instruction, cooperative research program on education, and reinforcement of departments of education.

Since money will be channeled through the state educational agency, Watkins indicated that the State Department of Education will have to have a state plan adopted.

"It will take a considerable amount of survey work," the superintendent pointed out, and added, "It will be some time until we know something definite about it."

Lincolnite Buys Share In Prize Bull For $126,000

Lincoln Star Special

Kansas City, Mo.—A one-third interest in the Perth Scotland and International Champion Angus bull, Ermitre of Haymount, sold here Monday for $126,000 in the Blue Sky Farm Dispersion Sale to J. Phillip Mahoney of Lincoln, Nebr.

The high seller in the two-day dispersion sale first won the Perth Scotland Show in 1959 and later after being purchased by United States cattlemen was the International Livestock Show Champion at Chicago in 1960.

Mahoney will share the services of the sire with co-owners Allandale Farm, Kingsport, Tenn.; and Garrett-Wynne Angus Ranch, Longmount, Colo.

Mahoney plans to use the service of the sire through artificial breeding on his 300-head Angus herd.

This purchase is believed to be a new record price paid by a Nebraska cattleman for a herdsire

"Nebraska has been good to me all my life," Mahoney said, "and this is one of the really material ways I can repay the entire state by helping to greatly upgrade the value and quality of beef in the state."

Bigger Workload Due In Future For Postmasters

Nebraska Postmasters Association members got a glimpse at their future workload Monday at their state convention

Regional Director Charles H. Shoemaker told the group that by 1980 the U.S. Post Office Department will be delivering more than 112 billion pieces of mail—forty billion more than are now being handled.

Zip code use was one of the most important things the postmasters were told to encourage. Shoemaker said that the zip code system has already shown itself to be effective on the national level.

Court Asked To Block Pact On CPPD Work At Hallam

A Lincoln man has asked Lancaster District Court to enjoin the Consumers Public Power District and the Babcock and Wilcox Co. from entering into a contract for the general mechanical and plant piping work for the Sheldon Station at Hallam

In a petition filed Monday, Vernon L. Crane alleges that the defendant CPPD had advertised Dec. 22, 1964 for sealed bids for the work estimated by engineers to cost approximately $1,060,000.

Three bids were submitted, including one by the defendant company; and the district then abandoned its method of competitive bidding and entered into negotiations with Natkin & Co. and the defendant company, a subcontractor of Natkin, according to Crane.

The petition alleges that the action of the district in awarding the contract to the defendant company was "arbitary, and based on favoritism, fraud and collusion."

The plaintiff contends, as a taxpayer and customer of CPPD, that he will be damaged by the acts of the defendant district in so negotiating and awarding the contract to the defendant company at an "excessively high cost," because he will be adversely affected by such increased and excessive costs of extending and modifying the Hallam Plant by increased rates and costs of operation.

He contends that the contract as awarded results in increased costs of at least $90,000 to the power district.

Finnish Ex-Ambassador Says Envoys 'Activators'

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Definitions of diplomacy and the qualifications desirable for a diplomat were given at a lecture here Monday before University of Nebraska faculty and students by the former Finnish ambassador to the United Nations, G. A. Gripenberg.

Citing such quotes about diplomacy and diplomats as, "An ambassador is an honest man sent abroad to lie for the good of his country," Gripenberg declared, "It would seem that the diplomatic profession is one of those activities that, in the course of time, has been ridiculed the most."

Gripenberg, who served in the Finnish foreign office for his entire career until 1959, deplored his observation that the general public "makes no distinction" between the diplomat and the politician. The politician is a strategist, he said, while the diplomat is an activator.

Noting that the diplomat has an advisory task to perform, Gripenberg emphasized that he "must have the moral conviction to express his views even when they are not in harmony" with the popular thinking.

"Compromise is essential in the activity of a diplomat. It becomes a second nature for him," he said.

Negotiation, including argument and persuasion, is the art of a diplomat, he said.

Due to frequent and rapid changes in world events, "you must constantly treat the enemy as if one day he will become your friend," Gripenberg stressed in his discussion of "tact."

"It is not enough for a diplomat to be right," he added, "you also have to make a good impression."

Consumers Going Ahead With Plans For Sidney Line

Columbus (UPI) — Consumers Public Power District reported Monday it is moving ahead with plans to build a new 230-kilovolt electric transmission line from Sidney to North Platte

Don E Schaufelberger, operations director for CPPD, said Nebraska engineering firms have been retained to do the necessary engineering work.

"In order that this line can be completed at the earliest possible date and assure Nebraska of a firm power supply from the west, we are devoting all our energies to an early award of the contract for the construction of this line," Schaufelberger said.

CPPD has already received bids on transformers and circuit breakers needed to build the line, he added.

Loup River Public Power District had also sought to construct the line, but CPPD's application was granted by the Nebraska Power Review Board.

The board will hear arguments Thursday on motions for a rehearing in the case. Motions were filed by Loup and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District, co-partners in the Nebraska Public Power System.

'Symbolic' Yield Signs Set In City

City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger said Monday that about 20 "curb lane yield" signs will be replaced this week by new symbolic signs recommended by the manual of uniform traffic control.

Holsinger said that the new signs will show motorists that where two lanes going in the same direction narrow into one, the right lane ends and vehicles in that lane must merge to the left.

The old signs had attempted to determine right-of-way by telling the right lane to yield, he said.

Holsinger said that the current trend in traffic control devices is to use more symbols and less words.

Council Pledges Its Cooperation

. . . ON BUILDING PLANS

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday pledged its cooperation with the county commissioners in carrying ahead plans to construct a joint city-county building at 10th and J, approved by voters last Tuesday.

The council unanimously passed a resolution which "rescinded and repealed" a previous resolution placing bond issues for a building at 15th and O on the May 4th general election ballot.

Councilman Lloyd Hinkley said that the passage of the resolution should "clear this situation up", referring to an unfounded rumor that hinted that the city would "drag its feet" now that voters had overwhelmingly approved the J St. location.

Rumor Denied

Mayor Dean Petersen denied the credibility of such a rumor, saying that the city would "proceed very diligently, in cooperation with the commissioners, to construct the building as rapidly and efficiently as possible."

Council members indicated that in their opinion, last Tuesday's vote constituted a go-ahead for architects to complete plans for the $5 million complex.

Councilman John Mason suggested that the council immediately consider a three-point program designed to beautify the area surrounding the new building.

—Extend to the city-county building site the same zoning patterns that surround the State Capitol, in an effort to block any detrimental land use.

Ornamental Lighting

—Set up an ornamental lighting district in the area; possibly using the same type of lighting for both the Capitol and the new building.

—Plan for a "mall-type" median to run down the middle of J Street between the two seats of government.

The council asked the mayor to set up a meeting with the County Board "as soon as possible" to move ahead with plans for the project.

Entire Council

Present plans call for the entire council and commission to join in the cooperative effort; with the possibility of reverting back to the original subcommittee—3 commissioners and 3 council members—that made initial plans, if the full membership approach is too cumbersome.

The council also discussed plans to landscape 15th St. from the Capitol north.

Council vice chairman John Comstock said that the council should have the same attitude toward the development of 15th St. as that of J St.

Decision Needed

In response to questions by council members, city department heads said that a decision will have to be made whether to leave the present curbs on 15th where they are, on both sides of the street, divided by a 10 foot landscaped median; or eliminate on street parking in favor of a wider median.

Problems involved in developing both 15th St. and J St.:

—Eliminating parking on 15th would reduce available stalls by 280.

—J St. will probably have to be widened. 15th was widened 4 years ago.

More Signals

—Both streets will require additional traffic signals.

—The possibility of assessing abutting property owners for the improvements made.

The council said it will consider retaining a landscape architect to design the development of both streets.

Council Redefines Fire Resistance Standards

In one of the shortest meetings in recent months, the City Council Monday passed an ordinance redefining fire resistence standards for buildings of all categories and postponed any recommendation on a request to locate an off-sale beer license at 14th and South Sts.

The council said it decided to delay action on the license application of Vernon and Rose Hennessey until it can decide on a formula for limiting the number of package liquor and beer licenses to be allowed in the designated outlying commercial areas.

A decision might be reached by next Monday, council members said, if the city departments can come up with a workable basis for setting limits by that time.

The fire resistence ordinance, amending the building code to up-date standards for fire separation walls, maximum floor areas anf fireproofing structural materials, was passed with an emergency clause, putting it into immediate effect.

Shelved

Also shelved by the council was an ordinance extending the city limits in various areas, including the State Fairgrounds.

State Fair Board members have requested a legal opinion by the state attorney general's office on the "legal effects" of city annexation of the Fairgrounds.

The council set April 19 as the date of hearing for the applications of James L. Dunbar for the transfer of an off-sale beer license from 2365 O to 332 No. 48th; and A-Go-Go Liquor Co., for a package liquor license at 839½ No. 27th.

State Wants 15 Writs Handled In Lower Court

The State Justice Department moved Monday to have some 15 habeas corpus cases pending in U.S. District Court here sent back to the courts where they were originally tried.

If the department is successful, these and perhaps other cases would go back to the state district court where it would be determined if the convicted criminals' rights were violated.

Petitions to dismiss the cases were filed in Federal Court.

The action followed within hours the signing of LB836 by Governor Morrison. The bill provides for a post-conviction procedure act.

At present, the habeas corpus actions may be filed directly with the Federal Court because, until Monday, Nebraska had no post-conviction remedy.

More Than 100

According to Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer, there are more than 100 state Penitentiary inmates who have filed habeas corpus actions in Federal Court in efforts to be released.

The Federal Court filings were prompted by recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings extending the rights of criminal suspects.

One of the motions to dismiss filed by the state Monday was in the case of Luther Wesley Wilson, who was convicted in 1958 in the slaying of Raymond Rasmussen during an Omaha liquor store robbery.

Wilson was once condemned to die in the electric chair, but the sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment by the State Parole Board.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard Williams said the motions to dismiss the habeas corpus actions were filed "on the grounds that they (the inmates) now have a remedy in state courts that they can now pursue."

'No Idea'

Williams explained that federal law says the inmates must exhaust their state remedies before taking a case to the federal courts. He said he had "no idea" when Federal Judge Robert Van Pelt would rule on the motions.

If the state is successful, the Justice Department would no longer be required to fight the habeas corpus petitions in Federal Court. Instead, they would be handled by county attorneys in the district courts.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Homer Hamilton said that if Van Pelt rules favorably on these motions, "we will file the same thing in all of them."

Hamilton said "all of them" would include the habeas corpus action brought by convicted slayer Darrel Parker.

Effect Unknown

Mel Kammerlohr, another assistant attorney general, said he didn't yet know what effect a favorable ruling by Judge Van Pelt might have in Caril Ann Fugate's habeas corpus action.

Van Pelt has not yet ruled on the merits of Miss Fugate's petition, but he has held that the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark Escobedo ruling has retroactive effect.

His decision has been appealed by the state to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo., where it is to be reviewed May 4.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A day of spring, soft as warm butter. When I walked the hill this morning, I found a great orange rig with “State Highway Division” stenciled on it.

The crew was power-sawing a lovely stand of old and lacy eucalyptus trees.

The Biggest State in the World is driving a new four-lane express highway through here. And though everybody living here protested, democracy prevailed. They cut down the trees anyway.

Moral: Democracy is what happens to you if you don't have a lot of votes. And when it happens, you won't like it.

There are now 10 million autos on California highways. All using taxed gasoline. Which, in turn, can be turned into incredible amounts of highway pavement.

There is no road so straight but what the highway people figure they can straighten it out.

If there is a noble, primitive area, the idea is to build a highway into it. So a lot of people can drive there and get it un-primitive.

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, we mustn't grumble. Must keep up with progress. The new Angilcan hymn book of the Church of England has dropped two hymns.

“Lead Kindly Light” was given the heave-ho. Good poem but not a good hymn.

“Nearer My God to Thee” was eliminated.

It encouraged a maunderingly dependent attitude.”

Let's not have any creeping socialism on our approach to heaven.

The grove of eucalyptus had been along the little road for many, many years.

Of course they have no commercial use The wood doesn't work well. Doesn't even make good firewood.

They were just a lacy pattern against the skyline. And they were in the way when the survey crew came through.

There was a fine old road that ran through the California Mother Lode Through the gold country

It went around hills. Between stands of live oak and manzanita and toyon berry bushes.

But a few brisk years ago, we fixed that.

We put a straight-as-a-string concrete highway right through the middle of it all. You can go right from Whiskey Slide to Slumgullion at 70 miles per hour. So fast you can't see a thing. It's a success story.

Recently, I drove all through the Golden State. And I must say you can go from here to there in a hell of a hurry.

In fact, about 10 people a day are killed on the great, straight highways. Doing just that. It is an impressive statistic of death and disaster when added up at year's end.

The highways, of course, are great for tourist business. For several million carloads of people come West each year. To see the lovely country the highways rush through so rapidly.

So possibly it's all for the good. Good for business. Good for getting there—wherever that is. Good grief, yes

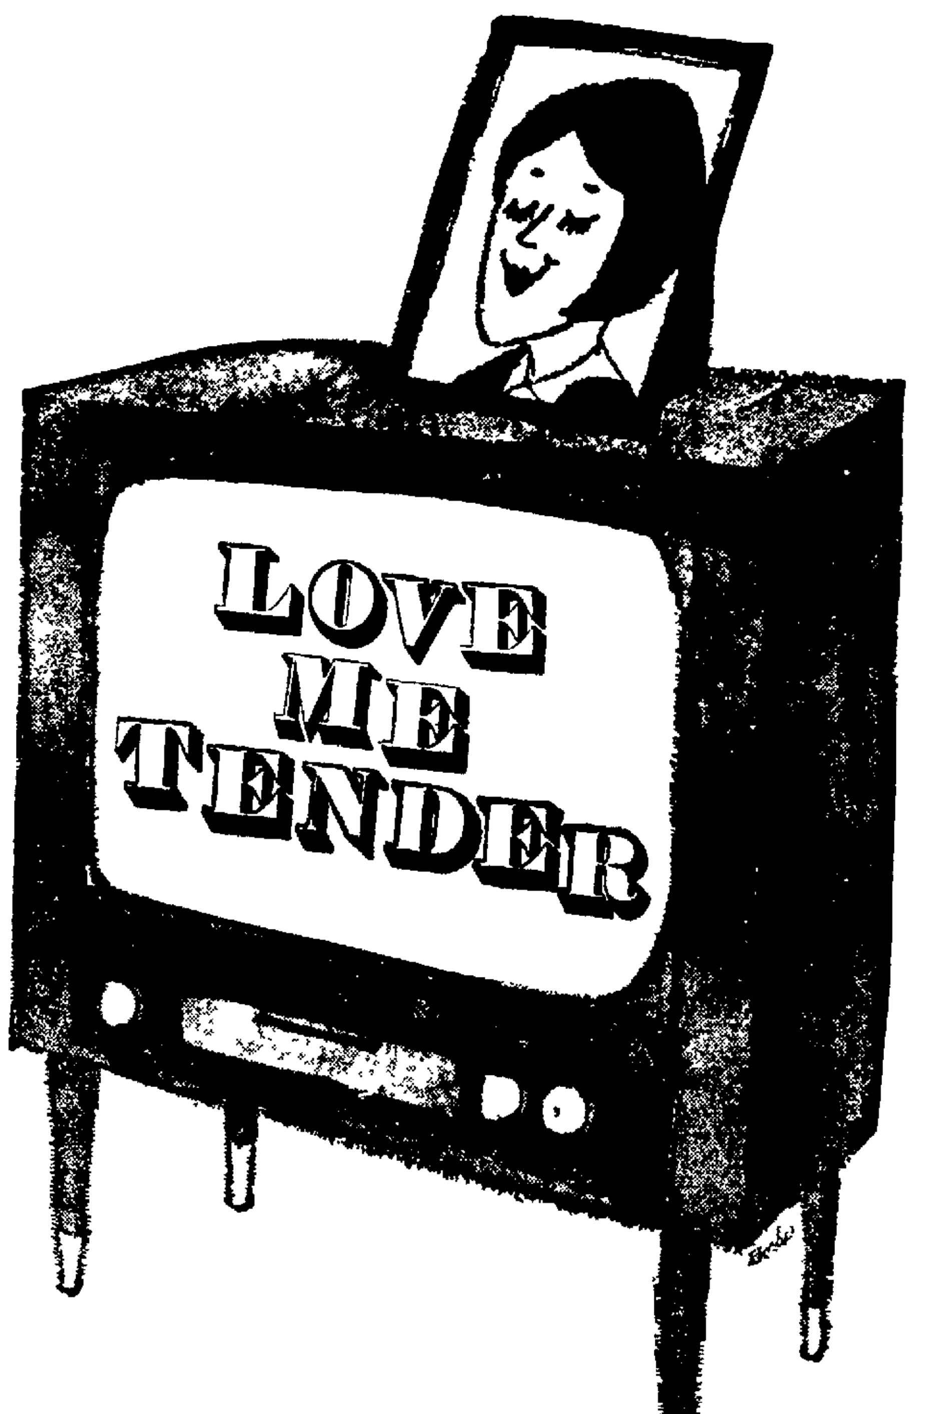
LOVE ME TENDER



A Hinky Dinky Production Featuring

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A day of spring, soft as warm butter. When I walked the hill this morning, I found a great orange rig with "State Highway Division" stenciled on it.

The crew was power-sawing a lovely stand of old and lacy eucalyptus trees.

The Biggest State in the World is driving a new four-lane express highway through here. And though everybody living here protested, democracy prevailed. They cut down the trees anyway.

Moral: Democracy is what happens to you if you don't have a lot of votes. And when it happens, you won't like it.

There are now 10 million autos on California highways. All using taxed gasoline. Which, in turn, can be turned into incredible amounts of highway pavement.

There is no road so straight but what the highway people figure they can straighten it out.

If there is a noble, primitive area, the idea is to build a highway into it. So a lot of people can drive there and get it un-primitive.

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, we mustn't grumble. Must keep up with progress. The new Angilcan hymn book of the Church of England has dropped two hymns.

"Lead Kindly Light" was given the heave-ho. Good poem but not a good hymn.

"Nearer My God to Thee" was eliminated.

It encouraged a maunderingly dependent attitude."

Let's not have any creeping socialism on our approach to heaven.

The grove of eucalyptus had been along the little road for many, many years.

Of course they have no commercial use. The wood doesn't work well. Doesn't even make good firewood.

They were just a lacy pattern against the skyline. And they were in the way when the survey crew came through.

There was a fine old road that ran through the California Mother Lode. Through the gold country.

It went around hills. Between stands of live oak and manzanita and toyon berry bushes.

But a few brisk years ago, we fixed that.

We put a straight-as-a-string concrete highway right through the middle of it all. You can go right from Whiskey Slide to Slumgullion at 70 miles per hour. So fast you can't see a thing. It's a success story.

Recently, I drove all through the Golden State. And I must say you can go from here to there in a hell of a hurry.

In fact, about 10 people a day are killed on the great, straight highways. Doing just that. It is an impressive statistic of death and disaster when added up at year's end.

The highways, of course, are great for tourist business. For several million carloads of people come West each year. To see the lovely country the highways rush through so rapidly.

So possibly it's all for the good. Good for business. Good for getting there—wherever that is. Good grief, yes.

PARTIES

for bride-elect

The pre-Easter week will be a busy one for Miss Beth Hemmer, who is spending her spring vacation from her teaching career in Denver, as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hemmer.

The former University of Nebraska coed has chosen Saturday, May 15, as the date for her marriage to Lt. Kenneth Hamilton of Lowry Air Force Base, Denver.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Harris will be a dinner host and hostess at their home in courtesy to the soon-to-be bride, who also will be honored with a bridal shower on Wednesday evening when Mrs. Arthur Perry will entertain a group of guests at a dessert to be held at her home.

Miss Hemmer again will be honored at a shower Thursday evening at a party to be given by Mrs. Roger Elm at her home, and Miss Nancy Eager will be hostess at a morning coffee and bathroom shower on Saturday in prenuptial courtesy to the bride-elect.

The series of courtesies for Miss Hemmer began on Monday when Mrs. O. D. Johnson, Mrs. Gerald Rosenberger and Mrs. Wilbur Winney were luncheon hostesses at the University Club.

During her brief visit in Lincoln, Miss Hemmer will share hostess duties with her mother and Mrs. O. D. Johnson to honor Miss Christine Olson at a luncheon and bridal shower, Thursday, at the University Club.

Miss Olson has chosen a June wedding date for her marriage to Ronald L. Harris.

GUESTS

were honored at a dinner party

It was the 'good old summer time' last Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. J. Burks Harley were a dinner host and hostess at Hotel Cornhusker. The two incentives for the party were Miss Elanor Nolan and Miss Melba Griffin, both of Pelican Lake, Minn., where Mr. and Mrs. Harley and their guests all have summer homes.

TALK

of the town

Our calendar tells us that we have about reached the mid-April mark. But it isn't the calendar that is bringing some of the populace back to town from here and there—It's that homing instinct.

* * *

We understand, for instance, that Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rohman plan to return to Lincoln this week. Mr. and Mrs. Rohman spent the winter months at their home in Delray Beach, Fla.

* * *

Our little black book tells us that there are other winter vacationists who also will be returning home this week—but we'll call the roll on them later.

* * *

Right now we want to mention a guest courtesy for which Mrs. Earl F. Jenkins will be hostess at her home on Thursday, when she entertains at a morning coffee. The honoree is Mrs. Robert Ferguson of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Junge. The guest list will include a group of Mrs. Ferguson's old friends.

* * *

And when Mrs. Emmett Junge entertains the members of her bridge club at luncheon on Wednesday, Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Samuel Van Pelt (JoAnn Junge) will be guests.

* * *

Also on Lincoln's guest list this week is Miss Auralea Sharrar who came from Denver the past weekend, and who is the guest of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lynn E. Sharrar.

* * *

There were weekend guests in town, too—They were the house guests of Mrs. F. E. Roth who was hostess to her son, Joseph P. Roth and three of her grandchildren, all of Salina, Kan. Actually, Mrs. Roth entertained four grandchildren since Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Roth, Jr., of Topeka, Kan., also were here.

NEWS

of activity in the suburban areas

Another busy week has begun—and in case you are already lost in the week—may we remind you that this is Tuesday morning.

For those of you who are wondering how the second day of the week arrived so quickly, let us take you back a few decades and give you some background as to how the day ever originated. It is said that Tuesday was named after Tyr, a Roman god of war, who was believed to have only one arm.

Well let's hope no suburban resident goes along with Tyr's war philosophy in view of all the social activity surrounding their busy homes—peace and quiet will undoubtedly be needed to carry out the plans and preparations for the events ahead.

KIMBERLY HEIGHTS

It is needless to say that Mrs. John Kircher will have her hands full next Sunday when she will be serving Easter dinner to a family gathering at their home. The question might be could she use an extra hand or two? Well, we're sure Mrs. Kircher has plans well in hand, so let's forget about worries and find out who the guests will be. Coming to Lincoln from Fremont will be Mrs. Kircher's mother, Mrs. R. M. Stender; and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lockwood. Also attending the dinner will be Mrs. Kircher's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Dietze and their sons, Dan, Thomas and Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dobler Jr. plan to leave Friday for St. Joseph, Mo., where they will spend the Easter weekend visiting with Mrs. Dobler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McMullan and with Mr. Dobler's mother, Mrs. W. O. Dobler. The Doblers' four children, Jim, Lisa, Greg and Christy, will accompany their parents on the trip.

Returning to Lincoln with the Dobler family on Sunday will be Mrs. W. O. Dobler Sr., who, after a two-day visit in Lincoln, will fly to Portland, Ore., for a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harrison.

FIENE HEIGHTS

Mrs. Ray Yost was flying high last weekend when she went to Wichita, Kan., Kansas City, Mo., and back to Lincoln. On Saturday and in Wichita, Mrs. Yost met briefly with her daughter, Miss Diane Yost of Dallas, Tex. After a short reunion, Mrs. Yost took advantage of air travel and flew to Kansas City. Here she visited with her brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yost. But Monday arrived too soon and again it was time to board the plane which winged its way to Lincoln.

More weekend travelers to report from the Fiene Heights area.

This time we wish to mention Mr. and Mrs. Don Knutzen and their daughter, Lynne, who motored to Cedar Bluffs for a visit with Mr. Knutzen's mother, Mrs. Elma Knutzen. The weekend turned out to be very special, indeed, for Mrs. Bill Fristoe and her son Scott of Washington, D.C., arrived at the scene of activity also. On Sunday the seven were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Schere and their family for dinner. The occasion was in honor of Peggy Schere who was confirmed that day.

SOUTH HILLS

It was off to Omaha and the Sheraton-Fontanelle Hotel for Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hagelberger last weekend. The Hagelbergers attended the National Guard Association Conference of which Mr. Hagelberger is a past president. The couple left on Friday and returned home again on Sunday.

LAST

party of season for Merrimyx club

One of the events during a busy weekend was the Merrimyx Dancing Club party at Hotel Cornhusker. The members of the club did more than just have a party, however. Since it was the last dance of the current season they elected new officers.

In the picture, standing and seated left to right, are Mr. and Mrs Lyle Franklin, retiring president couple; Mr. and Mrs. Clark McCabe, retiring secretary-treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Don Barth, newly elected president couple; Mr. and Mrs. John Bruce, newly elected secretary-treasurer, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ladenstein who headed the committee for the Saturday party.

Op Art and the Easter Egg

Make way for Op and Pop art on this season's Easter Egg — and don't forget the Easter Egg tree!

The Pop and Op eggs skip traditional funny bunny faces and lace-trimmed lovelies.

What happens when youngsters adapt the Pop and Op fad to eggs was demonstrated in a class of 10-year-olds at the Sands Point Country Day School in Sands Point, N.Y.

Malcolm Hutner, head of the school's art department, told the children to study the dyed eggs, see what the basic shape suggested and then design whatever came to mind.

First, the children dyed the eggs. Then they dried them and used paints, crayons and whatever else was at hand to decorate them

Egg decorators report that different looking Easter eggs also result when you raid the pantry.

Edibles such as dried fruits, all forms of pasta, cereals, popcorn, rice, barley, ice cream cones and candy are used to turn the colored eggs into animal, human, and moon characters.

Imagination, a little glue and spaghetti soon become whiskers macaroni or licorice become bunny ears; raisins turn into eyes; prunes or coconut flakes become hair, ice cream cones stand in for hats. Gum drops make good feet

The Easter Egg tree, meanwhile calls for a well-shaped tree branch, painted or left natural; artificial leaves and a pretty pot or container. Use pebbles or clay to anchor the tree

Since the tree is for keeping, it is suggested that the eggs be blown first—something the children can help with.

How to blow the eggs?

With a darning needle, make a hole at one end of a fresh egg and a slightly larger hole at the other end. Then blow into the smaller hole and the white and yolk will come out of the larger.

Next, rinse, dry and dye the eggs. Turn them so they will take the color evenly. When the inside becomes filled with dye, the eggs will stay under.

Trimming possibilities: glitter, sequins, applique, ribbons, pieces of old jewelry, gold or silver cord

Attach the eggs to the tree by means of a small string or thread loop held in by a bit of tape or by running a string or pretty cord through the holes, making a loop on top.

Tie a knot on the bottom of the egg so the cord or string won't slip through.

Opening lead — jack of spades.

Let's say you're declarer at three notrump and West leads the jack of spades, which you take with the king.

Obviously the suit to attack is hearts, so you lead the ace and another heart. West plays the five followed by the seven, and there you are, faced with the question of whether to play the nine or the queen from dummy.

It is certainly clear that if you could see the East-West cards in this hand you would play the queen, catching the jack, and then continue with the ten to make the contract.

But suppose the East-West cards are unknown to you as declarer. What should you do? In other words, what is the percentage play, the nine or the queen? Which play will make the contract most often in the long run, the nine or the queen?

The first step in trying to solve a percentage problem is to eliminate from consideration all distributions where your play either makes no difference or is strictly a toss-up. This includes those hands where East has both the K-J, or West has four or five to the K-J. Also included are those hands where the hearts are divided 3-3 with the honors divided, because in those cases you would presumably guess right half the time and guess wrong half the time.

The only hands where your play makes a difference mathematically are those where the hearts are divided 4-2, with East having a doubleton honor. This may be either the king or the jack, but since you must go down if it is the king, regardless of which card you play, and can make the contract if it is the jack by playing the queen from dummy, the queen is the correct play.

This is in line with the general theory that if a particular play can lead to making a contract, but cannot be the cause of losing it, it is the right play to make.

Convention

Among the Lincoln members of the League of Women Voters attending the state convention in Omaha today are Mrs. James Weber, state president who has been nominated to continue in office; Mrs. LaVell Swarts, candidate for first vice president; Mrs. James Arnot, nominated as chairman of nominating committee; Mrs. Charles Kuffel and Mrs. Kent Tupper, candidates for board of directors.

Also attending the one-day meeting, at which Mrs. Colin J. Macdonald, Dallas, Tex., national director, and Douglas Stewart, executive secretary of the Omaha Urban League, will be speakers, will be 18 delegates from the Lincoln league.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 40's and I guess we could be called an average couple We have three children and my husband is a good, steady worker. Although he rarely gives me a compliment, and he's not the affectionate type, I've been satisfied with him. I mean I never went looking for attention from other men.

Well, for the past year I've been watching the Weather Man on our local TV station, and he has really got me dreaming about him night and day. Please don't think I'm terrible, Abby, but I can't get him off my mind. He's not especially good-looking (he's losing his hair) but there's something about his smile. Or maybe it's his voice. Anyway, I've been trying to figure out a way to meet this Weather Man in person. Would it be wrong?

SECRET LOVE

DEAR SECRET: YES! Forget it. If you meet him, I predict turbulence and heavy precipitation, followed by a light frost.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a rather difficult one and I hope you have a reasonable answer for me. I have a stepfather who dominates the TV set. If I am watching something when he comes home, he walks right up to the set and changes the program. No one in the family has anything to say about it—not even my mother. We can't afford a second TV set, so that's out. He is the most unfriendly man I've ever known. No matter how hard I try to start a conversation with him, all he ever says to me is "Yeah," or "Hi," or "Goodbye." Please answer this in your column because I don't want my mother to know I wrote to you.

DISGUSTED STEPSON

DEAR DISGUSTED: Right or wrong, your stepfather is the head of the house, so don't attempt to reason with an unreasonable man. His inconsideration is setting a bad example, but you can set a better one by tolerating the injustice with good humor, patience and understanding. (P.S. Besides, young people seldom know what problems their parents might be battling.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are 50. Our four children are married and gone. We have seven fine grandchildren. Abby, I thought when a couple reached fifty, they could enjoy a sort of second honeymoon, if you know what I mean. But my wife says "NO" as she doesn't want to risk getting pregnant so late in life. Abby, do you think a woman of 50 could get pregnant?

GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: The chances are considerably minimized. But this is a question for your wife's doctor.

GIRLS is—

It might be bad grammar but, it's delightfully right for this fall's very pretty, very feminine fashion theme (some feel it's just in time, too). So, let's be candid—girls are not boys. They don't shave and most would rather flirt than fight. And, when flirting, most girls feel short, swinging skirts and "heels" make figures look best.

So with Paris now out with couture collections that emphasize the soft feminine all-girl look—New York shoe designers are previewing their fall footwear styles.

First it's a closed-up look in mid-high to high-heel styling. Lots with full-throated, high tongues (some kiltie interest, too). Many belted, buckled and prettily bowed. "Monique" and "Adagio" heel styles best compliment this new expression.

Then it's a low-cut Manhattan profile in sling-back styling or with low, closed backs, low sides, and extremely low, heavy heels.

Solons Hand Solid First-Round Floor Approval To New Time-Sales Act

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Monday handed solid first-round floor approval to a new installment sales (time sales) act with maximum charges equivalent to about 18 simple annual interest on the first $1 000 in sales.

Maximum rates on balances exceeding $1 000 would be held to about 12% simple interest.

Two key votes amended the bill in a form which won 42-0 advancement from general file.

On a 32-12 vote, lawmakers accepted an 18% rate on the first $1 500 in place of a 16% maximum on the first $2,000, as recommended by the Banking Commerce and Insurance Committee. The original bill proposed a flat 18% ceiling.

Then on a 22-21 count, senators lowered from $1 500 to $1 000 the figure against which the 18% rate may be applied.

Only other major change in the measure came when the legislators voted 25-18 to apply an 85-month time limit on installment sales transactions. The committee had recommended a 61-month limit; the original bill proposed no time limit.

Accepted was a committee proposal to reduce from $12 to $10 the minimum charge which may be applied against any installment sale.

LB283 provides for contractual disclosure (with charges expressed in dollars), licensing of sales finance companies; delinquency charges and comparatively stiff penalties.

Violators would be subjected to a $500 fine, six months imprisonment, or both, in addition to forefeiture of portions of principal and interest on the contract.

Penalty for excessive charges would be voiding of the first $4,000 in principal and the first $1,000 in interest plus forfeiture of excess interest, penalty for other violations would be voiding of the first $1 000 in principal and the first $500 in interest.

The bill is the result of voter approval of a constitutional amendment last fall authorizing the Legislature to enact special interest rate laws.

Prior to adoption of the amendment, a constitutional provision prohibited special laws regulating the interest on money, and two previous installment sales acts (plus a third law regulating such transactions) fell victim to that barrier when taken to the State Supreme Court.

Interest maximums in the 1959 act stood at 30% (on older used cars), while the 1963 act provided a ceiling of 24%.

Supporters of the new law noted the decreasing rate in urging adoption of an 18% maximum.

Sen. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud, chief sponsor of LB283, said the measure affects "the livelihood of thousands of small businessmen who need credit tools to meet competition in selling their goods."

Retail merchants are "not interested in making money in the finance business," Sen. Rick Budd of Nebraska City declared, but they do insist that "the credit customer must pay the full cost of that credit."

A "big majority" of Nebraska retailers will finance installment sales at less than the 18% maximum, Budd said.

Banking Committee Chairman Albert Kjar of Lexington urged adoption of a 16% ceiling, suggesting that his colleagues "consider the borrower, the big class of people who had no representation at the committee harings and perhaps here."

Sen. Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth, who offered the motion which reduced from $1 500 to $1,000 the figure against which 18% may be applied, suggested that the installment sales customer now pays costs of providing 30-day credit without charge.

Vote on the Bowen motion to increase the committee's 16% maximum on the first $2,000 to 18% on the first $1,500.

Why does the head chef at the Four Seasons cook with gas?

He cooks with gas because he needs the kind of control only gas can give you. You get the exact cooking temperature you want because you have hundreds of heats to choose from on a gas range, not just five or six. And you get that exact temperature right then and there. Turn a burner on a gas range up, down, on or off and it goes up, down, on or off. Instantly. This kind of perfect control is why the great chefs appreciate gas ranges. And why you'll feel the same way. Live modern for less ....with gas.

Solons Hand Solid First-Round Floor Approval To New Time-Sales Act

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Monday handed solid first-round floor approval to a new installment sales (time-sales) act with maximum charges equivalent to about 18% simple annual interest on the first $1,000 in sales.

Maximum rates on balances exceeding $1,000 would be held to about 12% simple interest.

Charges specified in the bill, LB283, are expressed in terms of $9 per hundred on the first $1,000 and $6 per hundred above $1,000.

Two key votes amended the bill in a form which won 42-0 advancement from general file.

On a 32-12 vote, lawmakers accepted an 18% rate on the first $1,500 in place of a 16% maximum on the first $2,000, as recommended by the Banking Commerce and Insurance Committee. The original bill proposed a flat 18% ceiling.

Then, on a 22-21 count, senators lowered from $1,500 to $1,000 the figure against which the 18% rate may be applied.

Only other major change in the measure came when the legislators voted 25-18 to apply an 85-month time limit on installment sales transactions. The committee had recommended a 61-month limit; the original bill proposed no time limit.

Accepted was a committee proposal to reduce from $12 to $10 the minimum charge which may be applied against any installment sale.

LB283 provides for contractual disclosure (with charges expressed in dollars); licensing of sales finance companies; delinquency charges, and comparatively stiff penalties.

Violators would be subjected to a $500 fine, six months imprisonment, or both, in addition to forefeiture of portions of principal and interest on the contract.

Penalty for excessive charges would be voiding of the first $4,000 in principal and the first $1,000 in interest plus forfeiture of excess interest; penalty for other violations would be voiding of the first $1,000 in principal and the first $500 in interest.

The bill is the result of voter approval of a constitutional amendment last fall authorizing the Legislature to enact special interest rate laws.

Prior to adoption of the amendment, a constitutional provision prohibited special laws regulating the interest on money, and two previous installment sales acts (plus a third law regulating such transactions) fell victim to that barrier when taken to the State Supreme Court.

Interest maximums in the 1959 act stood at 30% (on older used cars), while the 1963 act provided a ceiling of 24%.

Supporters of the new law noted the decreasing rate in urging adoption of an 18% maximum.

Sen. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud, chief sponsor of LB283, said the measure affects "the livelihood of thousands of small businessmen who need credit tools to meet competition in selling their goods."

Retail merchants are "not interested in making money in the finance business," Sen. Rick Budd of Nebraska City declared, but they do insist that "the credit customer must pay the full cost of that credit."

A "big majority" of Nebraska retailers will finance installment sales at less than the 18% maximum, Budd said.

Banking Committee Chairman Albert Kjar of Lexington urged adoption of a 16% ceiling, suggesting that his colleagues "consider the borrower, the big class of people who had no representation at the committee harings and perhaps here."

Sen. Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth, who offered the motion which reduced from $1,500 to $1,000 the figure against which 18% may be applied, suggested that the installment sales customer now pays costs of providing 30-day credit without charge.

Vote on the Bowen motion to increase the committee's 16% maximum on the first $2,000 to 18% on the first $1,500:

March Gas Funds Under New Law

The State Justice Department held Monday that March gasoline tax revenues should be distributed according to the provisions of this year's gas tax hike bill even though the funds were collected under the old law.

The new law, passed as LB25, raised the gas tax from 7 cents to 7½ cents, with 80% of the revenue going to cities and towns for road purposes and 20% to counties.

The Justice Department opinion noted that the law became operative April 1 and the state treasurer must distribute gas tax funds on the first day of each month.

Companion Opinion

In a companion opinion, however, the Justice Department held that the March cigarette tax collections should not be distributed on the basis of the state's new cigarette tax law passed by this legislature.

The cigarette tax hike, passed as LB26, raised the tax from six to eight cents, with 35% of the additional revenue going to complete a statewide educational television network, 35% to match federal funds for recreation development and 30% for access roads to recreation areas.

The department opinion noted that unlike the gas tax distribution set-up, the state treasurer does not have to make cigarette tax distributions on the first day of each month. The opinion said the treasurer may begin the new distribution as soon as he collects funds realized form the higher tax.

The cigarette tax hike also became effective April 1.

The opinions were in response to questions posed by State Treasurer Fred Sorensen.

Rural Youth Scholarships Bill Signed By Governor

Gov. Frank Morrison Monday signed into law a bill expected to make about $90,000 a year available for scholarships for deserving rural Nebraska youths. He termed it "a tremendously important piece of legislation."

The measure, LB163, permits the use of interest from a long-dormant $2.4 million Nebraska Rural Rehabilitation Corp. fund to pay for the scholarships.

The governor presented the pens used in signing the bills to Sens. George Gerdes of Alliance and Harold Stryer of Rising City, who spearheaded efforts to unfreeze the fund to the satisfaction of the federal government, which established the fund in the first place.

Morrison said the program draws public attention to higher education and agriculture, and is particularly desirable because it can make possible the education of some persons who, because of low farm income, might be deprived of higher education.

The governor thanked Sens. Gerdes, Stryker, Elvin Adamson of Valentine and Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont for working out the program.

Individual scholarships of up to $800 a year are allowed for attendance at the University of Nebraska or any of the state colleges or trade school. The state agriculture director administers the program and will be aided by an advisory committee in selecting scholarship recipients.

Court Asked To Uphold Ruling In Stanton Case

The Justice Department asked the State Supreme Court Monday to uphold the convictions of four Stanton County youths found guilty of rape charges last year.

The four, Kenneth Hunt, Robert Mussack, Arnold Vollbrecht and William Watts, were sentenced to four years imprisonment.

They were convicted by a Stanton County District Court jury of forcibly raping a woman Feb. 29 of last year in a house near Stanton

Martin Feared 'Foot-In-Door' On Aging Agency

Washington — Rep. Dave Martin said he voted against a bill creating an "Administration on Aging" because it was "a foot-in-the-door approach" leading to legislation which will cost hundreds of millions of dollars in the future.

Martin was the sole House member voting against the bill on a 391-1 vote.

"The bill itself would not give one nickel's worth of assistance to any older citizen," the Third District Republican said.

"It wwould simply provide grants to the various states to study the problems involved."

Beatrice Well Field Bids Approved

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice—Another major step toward more water for the city and its new rural industrial site was taken as the City Council accepted bids for well field improvements.

Bids totaling $173,863 were approved a few minutes after opening, a departure from the usual waiting period for additional study. The Board of Public Works met in special session concurrently with the council to expedite the start of the project.

Meints Brothers Construction Co. of Beatrice was awarded a $115,294 contract for the water transmission line, outdoing two other firms. Layne-Western Co. of Omaha was given the go-ahead on $58,569 worth of construction on the wells themselves, as well as pump and well houses. There was one other bidder.

Sought $100,000

The improvements will be on Burlington right-of-way acquired by easement and a $500 perpetual agreement. Private landowners had sought $100,000 for a four-acre tract in the same area, northwest of town near Hoag, prompting the railroad arrangement.

Meanwhile, City Atty. Anne Carstens has initiated easement condemnation action against the other land. This is designed to protect the city wells once they are in operation.

In other action, the council postponed a decision on installing a traffic light at 19th and Lincoln, pending further discussion with the state traffic engineer. Councilman Rex Lutz said the engineer had indicated the intersection "has only about one-fifth the traffic we need to warrant a light."

Other action:

—Referred to Board of Public Works two bids on water main district 78, apparent low $1,731 by Willet Trenching Co.

—Approved plat of 62-lot Davison's Village Fourth Addition, west of 19th between Washington and Hoyt.

—Approved applications of Dennis L. Free and Floyd Miller as volunteer firemen

—Suspended rules and created sanitary sewer district 139 in Prairie Lane Addition.

—Voted to request Board of Public Works to regravel Garden St. from 800 block west, following complaints the road had been only partially repaired.

—Passed ordinance prohibiting dumping of septic tank waste into city sewer system

Write-In Winner At Beatrice Won't Accept The Job

Beatrice (AP)—Russell E. Arthur, a 10-year veteran of the Beatrice City Council, who was elected to the council by write-ins last week, will not accept the job.

Arthur had said before the election that he did not wish to have his name written in for a council post. He retired from the council to run for mayor in the previous city election and was defeated.

School Land Reappraisals Opposed

Two officials of the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds Monday voiced opposition to a legislative bill which would require scientific reappraisal of Nebraska's 16 million acres of state school lands.

Board Chairman H. L. Blackledge of Kearney said the bill "removes all control from the board over the proposed reappraisal."

The bill, LB883, introduced Friday by the Salaries and Claims Committee, would require that all state school lands be included in the reappraisals of counties ordered by the 1963 Legislature.

Reports

The counties would furnish the Board of Educational Lands and Funds with reports of reappraisal results, and the board then would use the new values to determine rental charges.

"This would put us in the position of renting out lands without any control over the amount of the rent." Blackledge said.

Rent on school lands now is set by law at six per cent of the land's appraised value.

Need Questioned

Board Secretary John Olson questioned the need for the proposed reappraisal He said state law now requires a reappraisal of school lands every three years.

"Our appraisers are all professionally qualified," he said, "and the reappraisals are much more carefully done than they would be for tax purposes."

The improvements will be on Burlington right-of-way acquired by easement and a $500 perpetual agreement. Private landowners had sought $100,000 for a four-acre tract in the same area, northwest of town near Hoag, prompting the railroad arrangement.

Meanwhile, City Atty. Anne Carstens has initiated easement condemnation action against the other land. This is designed to protect the city wells once they are in operation.

In other action, the council postponed a decision on installing a traffic light at 19th and Lincoln, pending further discussion with the state traffic engineer. Councilman Rex Lutz said the engineer had indicated the intersection "has only about one-fifth the traffic we need to warrant a light."

Other action:

—Referred to Board of Public Works two bids on water main district 78, apparent low $1,731 by Willet Trenching Co.

—Approved plat of 62-lot Davison's Village Fourth Addition, west of 19th between Washington and Hoyt.

—Approved applications of Dennis L. Free and Floyd Miller as volunteer firemen.

—Suspended rules and created sanitary sewer district 139 in Prairie Lane Addition.

—Voted to request Board of Public Works to regravel Garden St. from 800 block west, following complaints the road had been only partially repaired.

—Passed ordinance prohibiting dumping of septic tank waste into city sewer system.

Write-In Winner At Beatrice Won't Accept The Job

Beatrice (AP)—Russell E. Arthur, a 10-year veteran of the Beatrice City Council, who was elected to the council by write-ins last week, will not accept the job.

Arthur had said before the election that he did not wish to have his name written in for a council post. He retired from the council to run for mayor in the previous city election and was defeated.

School Land Reappraisals Opposed

Two officials of the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds Monday voiced opposition to a legislative bill which would require scientific reappraisal of Nebraska's 1.6 million acres of state school lands.

Board Chairman H. L. Blackledge of Kearney said the bill "removes all control from the board over the proposed reappraisal."

The bill, LB883, introduced Friday by the Salaries and Claims Committee, would require that all state school lands be included in the reappraisals of counties ordered by the 1963 Legislature.

Reports

The counties would furnish the Board of Educational Lands and Funds with reports of reappraisal results, and the board then would use the new values to determine rental charges.

"This would put us in the position of renting out lands without any control over the amount of the rent," Blackledge said.

Rent on school lands now is set by law at six per cent of the land's appraised value.

Need Questioned

Board Secretary John Olson questioned the need for the proposed reappraisal. He said state law now requires a reappraisal of school lands every three years.

"Our appraisers are all professionally qualified," he said, "and the reappraisals are much more carefully done than they would be for tax purposes."

Assignment Missed

The story gained only mere mention in the Midwest, but it probably raised plenty of eyebrows among Dallas, Texas officials where UCLA's Larry Zeno hopes to play his football next season.

Zeno was arrested a couple of weeks ago and was charged with burglary, but was later acquitted when he convinced the judge that he was merely trying to see his girl friend and found the wrong house.

That will have to go down as the biggest missed assignment of the year. No wonder the Bruins couldn't beat anyone in football with a back trying to find holes in the opposing line who can't even find his girl friend's house.

But how do you suppose the Dallas officials feel, knowing that they have drafted some one who is supposed to avoid 270-pound tackles but can't even tell one house from the next?

Zeno explained to the judge that he wanted to see his girl friend and that he had parked his car at the end of the block because it had a noisy muffler.

That was considerate of him. No need to wake up the whole neighborhood just to see your girl.

He told the judge that he then proceeded to his girl's house via the back yards in the block, but that he wasn't sure which house it was from the back yard view.

When he began rumbling around on the back porch of a fellow who had no daughters, the guy called the cops. Instead of seeing his girl, all Zeno saw was the blue uniforms of Los Angeles policemen.

Now, there were probably thousands of American youths who picked up their girl friend at the front door that night. But Larry was different. He was going to do it like they do in West Side Story.

The next time he calls her up, she may suggest that he leave his police escort at home.

Still Has Two

Doug Sanders, a two-time winner on the golf tour this season, has gained a reputation as one of the gayer blades on the circuit. But the golfer has given up the elbow-bending routine—almost.

However, Doug did confess to a writer during the Masters that he "got in the champagne jug" after winning the Doral Open. "The next morning I felt like somebody hit me in the head with a stick," he offered. "I can't go on winning if it makes me feel that bad."

Doug also asked his interviewer, "Don't make me appear too clean. I've still got the other two vices."

Huskers A Darkhorse

Before the Big Eight baseball season opened last weekend, Kansas coach Floyd Temple tabbed Nebraska as a definite contender for the title, a role the Huskers have now assumed for real with the twin win over Missouri.

"They (Nebraska) have most of their players back and the way they ended the season so strong last year, they'd have to be considered a definite threat for the championship," Temple said.

"I think it'll be a more wide-open race than it was last year," he continued. "I don't think one team will dominate the race like Missouri did last year. The eventual winner could lose four or five games in the league."

Only Kansas at 3-0 and Nebraska at 2-0 are still unbeaten after the first weekend. The two teams meet at Lawrence, Kan., May 21-22.

May Have Missed Someone

Lynn Farrell, athletic director at Hastings College, points out that the Central Nebraska Track Meet April 22 at Hastings has been divided into two classes and that response from coaches "has been excellent." However, Farrell is fearful that some interested schools may have been missed.

"We would certainly appreciate it if you might mention that if any school we have not contacted would be interested in attending, we would be most happy to have them contact us as soon as possible," Farrell writes.

High school track coaches may contact Farrell at Hastings College.

Peithman 8th In Scoring

Al Peithman, former Hebron High School and Kansas State basketball star, ranked eighth in scoring for the Akron Goodyears AAU basketball team the past year.

Peithman averaged 9.1 per game and topped the Akron club in scoring with 22 against the Phillips Oilers in an 84-64 Akron win.

Field Event Pacesetters Hold Comfortable Leads

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Nebraska's high school field event leaders have given their competitors some lofty marks to shoot at in the course of the 1965 season.

The early pacesetters are Steve Yungblut of Scottsbluff in the shot put (58-1), Sam Buda of Creighton Prep in the discus (158-4½), Randy Reeves of Omaha Benson in the pole vault (13-9¼), Dennis Tunks of Boys Town in the high jump (6-3) and Bob Heimbuch of Grand Island in the broad jump (22-6¾).

All have comfortable leads in the specialties, but there are strong challengers in each event.

Yungblut is nearly two feet in front of Mike McNair of Imperial in the shot put, but there are five others who have reached 54 feet and can be expected to improve.

Buda is chased by three others who have bettered 150 feet, but he figures to improve as much or more than any of the close contenders.

Reeves is well in front in the pole vault, but Gothenburg's Tom Jobman has stamped himself as a threat with a 13-3 effort which puts him second behind Reeves on the list of all-time top performances.

Heimbuch, runnerup in the state meet as a sophomore, has been over 22 feet on several occasions this spring and is nearly six inches ahead of Larry Carlson of Beatrice. Others in the 22-foot class are Eddie Walker of Omaha Tech and Dick Dunham of Elkhorn.

High winds and wet tracks continue to slow the progress of relay teams.

Assaulting Ref Costs Soccer Spectator $28

Nottingham, England (AP) — a 16-year-old Manchester United soccer fan was fined $28 Monday for assaulting the referee after his team was beaten in the English Cup semi-finals.

After Leeds United edged Manchester 1-0 on a last minute goal March 31, referee Dick Windle was felled by a blow on his neck. He had to be carried to the dressing room. A policeman chased the attacker and brought him down with a diving tackle.

4 Husker Gridders Gain Top-Level Positions

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

The showings made last fall and thus far in spring drills have almost guaranteed top-level positions for Pete Tatman, Bill Johnson, Kaye Carstens and Ron Kirkland on the Nebraska football team.

But where they will fit in is the problem the NU coaching staff is currently wrestling with.

"If they continue to come along the way they have, they'll be playing somewhere," head coach Bob Devaney said Monday. "What we have to do is figure out where they will do the most good."

This process continued Monday when Carstens and Johnson were moved to the top offensive unit with Tatman and Kirkland going with the No. 1 defensive 11.

"Tatman and Johnson both looked good at fullback Sunday as did Kirkland and Carstens at left halfback," Devaney pointed out. "If we decide to use Johnson at fullback, we would probably use Tatman on defense and the same way with Kirkland and Carstens."

The Husker coach indicated that because of their versatility, they would be of more value to the team with one pair going on offense and the other on defense rather than having one pair backing up the other on offense alone.

With the exception of the backfield switch involving this quartet and the dropping of Mike Grace to Wayne Weber's team at left end, all other personnel switches made for the fifth practice of the spring were necessitated by injuries suffered in Sunday's scrimmage.

Others missing Monday's workout with injuries were Tom Brinkworth, Bob Taucher, Mike Worley, Don Delaney, Ted Vactor, Richard Czap and Stan Farrer.

Czap pulled a muscle in the opening spring drill and has not worked since. Farrer was injured Saturday while all others were victims of Sunday's scrimmage session.

Devaney said he planned another scrimmage for Friday before turning the squad loose for spring vacation.

"We plan on letting them go home Friday night unless we get hit by a couple of days of bad weather this week," Devaney said. "If that happens, then we might consider practicing Saturday."

The Husker coach said he definitely would break off the drills for vacation, citing the fact that the players had to give up Christmas vacation for the Cotton Bowl trip.

BASEBALL'S HERE AGAIN!

Johnson Fools Players With 'Pretty Fair Arm'

. . . HOT DOG EATINGEST PRESIDENT OF ALL

By Associated Press

Lyndon Johnson threw out the first baseball Monday, got the 1965 season off and running, and established himself as possibly the hot-dog-eatingest President of all.

No record was kept of how many hot dogs Johnson munched, or how many soft drinks he consumed, but he powerfully ate and drank his way through the first three innings at approximately one-hot-dog-an-inning clip.

Most of the running Monday was done by the Boston Red Sox, who used convincing home run tactics to squash the Washington Senators, 7 to 2. Five homers produced all the winners' runs while two roundtrippers made up the losers' total.

Although ostensibly a Senator rooter, Johnson appeared to enjoy it all.

When Don Lock, Washington center fielder, began the scoring in the second inning with a long home run, Johnson was one of the first to leap to his feet and applaud.

In the third inning, Lee Thomas, Boston first baseman, homered with two runners ahead of him.

Up jumped House Speaker John McCormack, a Boston rooter by birth and training. But Johnson who carried Massachusetts convincingly in November, popped right up here, too, to join McCormack in the cheering.

Following tradition that goes back to William Howard Taft and 1910, Johnson threw out the first ball. He is a one-time first baseman, and still has a pretty fair arm by Presidential standards. At least, he fooled members of the Boston and Washington squads clustered in front of the Presidential Box by getting off a throw that almost cleared them all.

Steve Ridzik, a Washington relief pitcher, finally grabbed the ball after a scramble in which he wound up on the seat of his pants. Then, for good measure, Johnson threw a second time—a feeble toss his time—and Washington catcher Mike Brumley retrieved it.

At this point, Johnson settled down to enjoy himself, eating, talking, and, of course, politicking.

Rookie outfielder Arturo Lopez made a three-base error in the 11th inning and Minnesota pushed across a run edging the New York Yankees 5-4. Cesar Tovar, whose ninth inning error had enabled the Yankees to tie the score, drove in the winning run with a single.

The Chicago Cubs came from behind twice and settled for a 10-10 tie with the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals in a game called by darkness after 11 innings. Ernie Banks' threerun homer with two out in the ninth erased a 9-6 St. Louis lead and then, after the Cardinals had scored a run in the top of the 1th, Ron Santo tied it again with a double.

San Francisco's Juan Marichal and Pittsburgh's Bob Veale engaged in a pitcher's duel with Bob Bailey's 10th inning homer breaking it up and giving the Pirates a 1-0 victory over the Giants.

Bailey's shot was only the fifth hit off Marichal. Veale, who led the major leagues in strikeouts with 250 last season, fanned 10 and allowed just three hits.

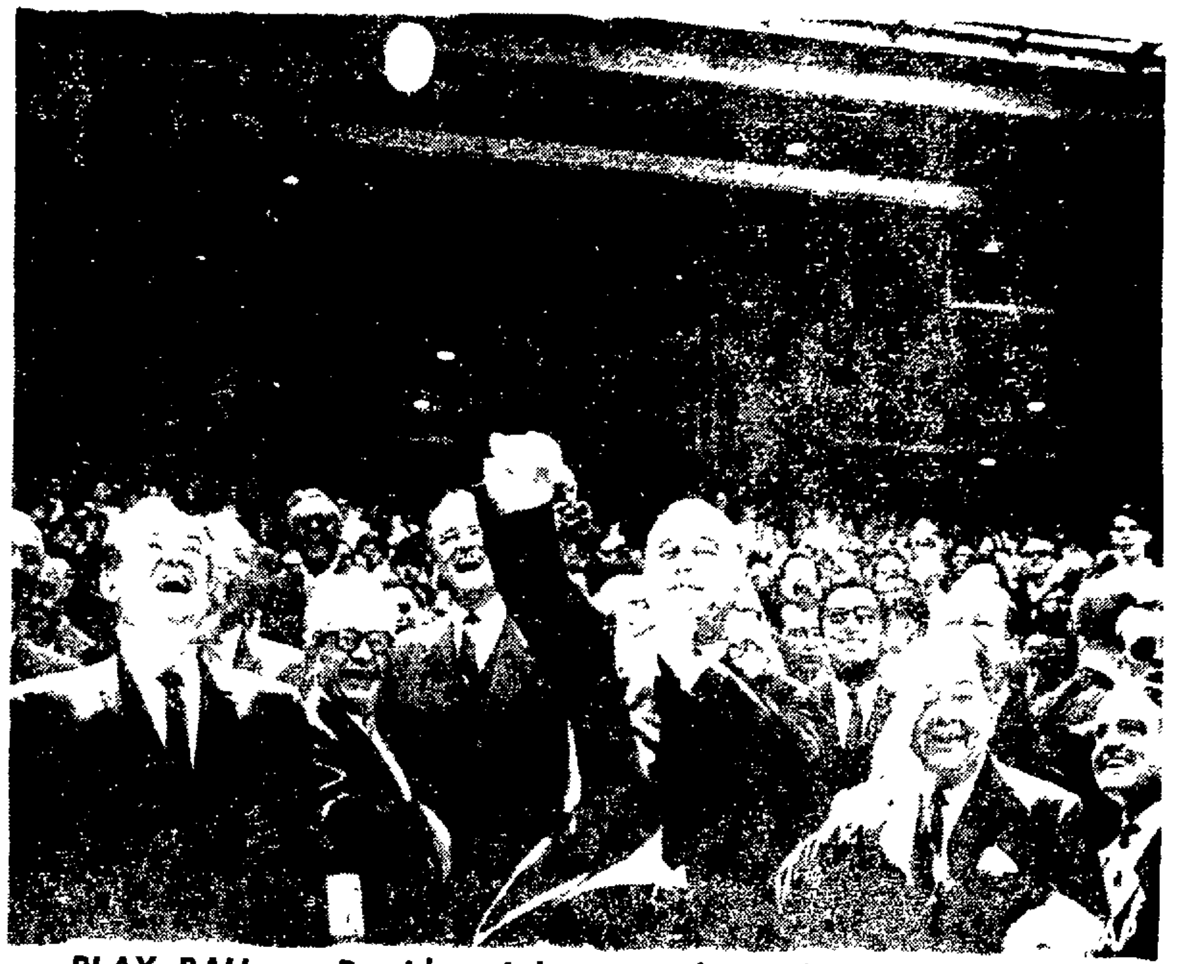
Joe Torre powered two home runs and Eddie Mathews added one as Milwaukee got two-hit pitching from Tony Cloninger and beat Cincinnati 4-2. Deron Johnson homered for the Reds.

Don Drysdale fired a four-hitter and hit a two-run homer as Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the New York Mets 4-2. Willie Davis, who had three hits, also homered for the Dodgers.

The Cleveland Indian-Los Angeles Angel game at Los Angeles was postponed because of rain.

Chris Short spun a sharp four-hitter, striking out 11 as Philadelphia blanked Houston 2-0 in the first regular season game ever played in the Astrodome. Richie Allen's home run produced both Phillie runs.

Jerry Lumpe and John Sullivan each tagged two-run homers as Detroit came from behind in the late innings and downed Kansas City 6-2. The defeat spoiled the debut of Charlie O, the mule that serves as the Athletics' mascot and which is named after Kansas City owner Charles O. Finley.



PLAY BALL . . . President Johnson makes a high toss to open the American League baseball season. At left is Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

Celtics At 'Fever Pitch' For Game At 76ers 'Snake Pit'

. . . HEINSOHN RAPS SCHAYES' TACTICS

Boston (AP)—A Philadelphia bench order to "bang around" the Celtics more has incited Boston to fever pitch for an attempted National Basketball Association playoff kill Tuesday night.

The Celtics invade the 76ers home court which Coach Red Auerbach calls "The Snake Pit." They need one victory to wrap up their ninth straight Eastern Division crown. They moved ahead 3-2 in the best-of-7 series with a 114-108 decision Sunday.

After the rough contest, Boston cornerman Tommy Heinsohn said "The water boy came over at halftime and said Coach Dolph Schayes had ordered the 76ers to bang us around. Lucious Jackson followed it to the hilt.

"Jackson twice trapped the ball and fouled at the same time. He put me and then K.C. Jones in the bleachers and slammed Sam Jones to the floor.

"After the overtime loss in Philadelphua, we couldn't wait to get on the court here. We were the most eager we've ever been for any game.

"Now comes this 'knock-'em-down-stomp-on 'em business.'

Meanwhile, Boston's Tom Sanders thinks he's found a way to slow down Chet Walker, a 20.7 average scorer in the first four games who was held to 12 Sunday.

Jackson and Walker are the cornermen Boston players agree must be contained to beat Philadelphia.

"I know everybody has won at home so far but I think we'll win down there," said Sam Jones.

Facing an uphill battle, Philadelphia is challenging the odds. For two straight years, 1960 and 1961, St. Louis was the only team to be down 2-3 in seven-game division playoffs and pull it out. In 1962 Boston became the only club to accomplish the feat in the championship finals. The Lakers—Minneapolis then Los Angeles—were the victims all three times.

"If we play as well as we did Sunday," said Schayes, "we'll win at home."

"We'll win the sixth game," vowed Wilt Chamberlain, who outscored Boston's Bill Russell but was outplayed by his rival in every other category.

"We'll just get 'em in Philly," added Hal Greer who scored 28 points to Chamberlain's 30. Al Bianch, who drew two technical fouls and disqualification in the second period, said "I want to get even."

The officiating Sunday, drew a lot of criticism from both sides, Russell explained. He said:

"The officials may be inconsistent but human," Russell said. "I think they are doing the best they can in the pressure of these playoffs."

—IN BRIBERY CASE—

Defendant Enters Plea Of Innocent

Seattle (AP) — Leo Enrico Casale, 24, one of two Chicago men charged in the Seattle University basketball point-shaving case, pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court here Monday.

Casale's arraignment was continued for one week, however, to give his Seattle attorneys, James C. Young and Victor Hoff, time to prepare motions.

Judge William T. Beeks granted Casale permission to return to Chicago, where he operates a cocktail lounge, but told him to be ready to return when the court or U.S. attorney want him.

Casale and Joseph F. Polito, 32, were indicted by a federal grand jury here five days ago on charges of conspiring to manipulate the outcome of a basketball game by bribery

No date has been set for Polito's arraignment.

The game was played here Jan. 22 between Seattle and Idaho. Seattle won 89-72.

Two Seattle players, team captain Charlie Williams and reserve guard Peller Phillips, both 21, were arrested by the FBI Feb. 17, the same day as Casale. Charges against the two players were dropped by the government without explanation April 2. Both testified before the grand jury last week.

Williams, Phillips and a third player, reserve center, L. J. Wheeler, were expelled from Seattle University Feb. 18. Wheeler was never charged, but was ousted from school for not reporting knowledge of a bribe attempt.

During the weekend, Williams proclaimed his innocence in the first public statement he had made since his arrest. He said he had never taken part in an attempt to fix a basketball game and had never had any contact with Casale.

The Husker coach indicated that because of their versatility, they would be of more value to the team with one pair going on offense and the other on defense rather than having one pair backing up the other on offense alone.

With the exception of the backfield switch involving this quartet and the dropping of Mike Grace to Wayne Weber's team at left end, all other personnel switches made for the fifth practice of the spring were necessitated by injuries suffered in Sunday's scrimmage.

Others missing Monday's workout with injuries were Tom Brinkworth, Bob Taucher, Mike Worley, Don Delaney, Ted Vactor, Richard Czap and Stan Farrer.

Czap pulled a muscle in the opening spring drill and has not worked since. Farrer was injured Saturday while all others were victims of Sunday's scrimmage session.

Devaney said he planned another scrimmage for Friday before turning the squad loose for spring vacation.

"We plan on letting them go home Friday night unless we get hit by a couple of days of bad weather this week," Devaney said. "If that happens, then we might consider practicing Saturday."

The Husker coach said he definitely would break off the drills for vacation, citing the fact that the players had to give up Christmas vacation for the Cotton Bowl trip.

Johnson Fools Players With 'Pretty Fair Arm'

. . . HOT DOG EATINGEST PRESIDENT OF ALL

By Associated Press

Lyndon Johnson threw out the first baseball Monday, got the 1965 season off and running, and established himself as possibly the hot-dog-eatingest President of all.

No record was kept of how many hot dogs Johnson munched, or how many soft drinks he consumed, but he powerfully ate and drank his way through the first three innings at approximately one-hot-dog-an-inning clip.

Most of the running Monday was done by the Boston Red Sox, who used convincing home run tactics to squash the Washington Senators, 7 to 2. Five homers produced all the winners' runs while two roundtrippers made up the losers' total.

Although ostensibly a Senator rooter, Johnson appeared to enjoy it all.

When Don Lock, Washington center fielder, began the scoring in the second inning with a long home run, Johnson was one of the first to leap to his feet and applaud.

In the third inning, Lee Thomas, Boston first baseman, homered with two runners ahead of him.

Up jumped House Speaker John McCormack, a Boston rooter by birth and training. But Johnson who carried Massachusetts convincingly in November, popped right up here, too, to join McCormack in the cheering.

Following tradition that goes back to William Howard Taft and 1910, Johnson threw out the first ball. He is a one-time first baseman, and still has a pretty fair arm by Presidential standards. At least, he fooled members of the Boston and Washington squads clustered in front of the Presidential Box by getting off a throw that almost cleared them all.

Steve Ridzik, a Washington relief pitcher, finally grabbed the ball after a scramble in which he wound up on the seat of his pants. Then, for good measure, Johnson threw a second time—a feeble toss his time—and Washington catcher Mike Brumley retrieved it.

At this point, Johnson settled down to enjoy himself, eating, talking, and, of course, politicking.

Rookie outfielder Arturo Lopez made a three-base error in the 11th inning and Minnesota pushed across a run edging the New York Yankees 5-4. Cesar Tovar, whose ninth inning error had enabled the Yankees to tie the score, drove in the winning run with a single.

The Chicago Cubs came from behind twice and settled for a 10-10 tie with the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals in a game called by darkness after 11 innings. Ernie Banks' threerun homer with two out in the ninth erased a 9-6 St. Louis lead and then, after the Cardinals had scored a run in the top of the 1th, Ron Santo tied it again with a double.

San Francisco's Juan Marichal and Pittsburgh's Bob Veale engaged in a pitcher's duel with Bob Bailey's 10th inning homer breaking it up and giving the Pirates a 1-0 victory over the Giants.

Bailey's shot was only the fifth hit off Marichal. Veale, who led the major leagues in strikeouts with 250 last season, fanned 10 and allowed just three hits.

Joe Torre powered two home runs and Eddie Mathews added one as Milwaukee got two-hit pitching from Tony Cloninger and beat Cincinnati 4-2. Deron Johnson homered for the Reds.

Don Drysdale fired a four-hitter and hit a two-run homer as Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the New York Mets 4-2. Willie Davis, who had three hits, also homered for the Dodgers.

The Cleveland Indian-Los Angeles Angel game at Los Angeles was postponed because of rain.

Chris Short spun a sharp four-hitter, striking out 11 as Philadelphia blanked Houston 2-0 in the first regular season game ever played in the Astrodome. Richie Allen's home run produced both Phillie runs.

Jerry Lumpe and John Sullivan each tagged two-run homers as Detroit came from behind in the late innings and downed Kansas City 6-2. The defeat spoiled the debut of Charlie O, the mule that serves as the Athletics' mascot and which is named after Kansas City owner Charles O. Finley.

Celtics At 'Fever Pitch' For Game At 76ers 'Snake Pit'

. . . HEINSOHN RAPS SCHAYES' TACTICS

Boston (AP)—A Philadelphia bench order to "bang around" the Celtics more has incited Boston to fever pitch for an attempted National Basketball Association playoff kill Tuesday night.

The Celtics invade the 76ers home court which Coach Red Auerbach calls "The Snake Pit." They need one victory to wrap up their ninth straight Eastern Division crown. They moved ahead 3-2 in the best-of-7 series with a 114-108 decision Sunday.

After the rough contest, Boston cornerman Tommy Heinsohn said "The water boy came over at halftime and said Coach Dolph Schayes had ordered the 76ers to bang us around. Lucious Jackson followed it to the hilt.

"Jackson twice trapped the ball and fouled at the same time. He put me and then K.C. Jones in the bleachers and slammed Sam Jones to the floor.

"After the overtime loss in Philadelphua, we couldn't wait to get on the court here. We were the most eager we've ever been for any game.

"Now comes this 'knock-'em-down-stomp-on 'em business.'

Meanwhile, Boston's Tom Sanders thinks he's found a way to slow down Chet Walker, a 20.7 average scorer in the first four games who was held to 12 Sunday.

Jackson and Walker are the cornermen Boston players agree must be contained to beat Philadelphia.

"I know everybody has won at home so far but I think we'll win down there," said Sam Jones.

Facing an uphill battle, Philadelphia is challenging the odds. For two straight years, 1960 and 1961, St. Louis was the only team to be down 2-3 in seven-game division playoffs and pull it out. In 1962 Boston became the only club to accomplish the feat in the championship finals. The Lakers—Minneapolis, then Los Angeles—were the victims all three times.

"If we play as well as we did Sunday," said Schayes, "we'll win at home."

"We'll win the sixth game," vowed Wilt Chamberlain, who outscored Boston's Bill Russell but was outplayed by his rival in every other category.

"We'll just get 'em in Philly," added Hal Greer who scored 28 points to Chamberlain's 30. Al Bianch, who drew two technical fouls and disqualification in the second period, said "I want to get even."

The officiating Sunday, drew a lot of criticism from both sides, Russell explained. He said:

"The officials may be inconsistent but human," Russell said. "I think they are doing the best they can in the pressure of these playoffs."

—IN BRIBERY CASE—

Defendant Enters Plea Of Innocent

Casale's arraignment was continued for one week, however, to give his Seattle attorneys, James C. Young and Victor Hoff, time to prepare motions.

Judge William T. Beeks granted Casale permission to return to Chicago, where he operates a cocktail lounge, but told him to be ready to return when the court or U.S. attorney want him.

Casale and Joseph F. Polito, 32, were indicted by a federal grand jury here five days ago on charges of conspiring to manipulate the outcome of a basketball game by bribery.

No date has been set for Polito's arraignment.

The game was played here Jan. 22 between Seattle and Idaho. Seattle won 89-72.

Two Seattle players, team captain Charlie Williams and reserve guard Peller Phillips, both 21, were arrested by the FBI Feb. 17, the same day as Casale. Charges against the two players were dropped by the government without explanation April 2. Both testified before the grand jury last week.

Williams, Phillips and a third player, reserve center, L. J. Wheeler, were expelled from Seattle University Feb. 18. Wheeler was never charged, but was ousted from school for not reporting knowledge of a bribe attempt.

During the weekend, Williams proclaimed his innocence in the first public statement he had made since his arrest. He said he had never taken part in an attempt to fix a basketball game and had never had any contact with Casale.

Field Event Pacesetters Hold Comfortable Leads

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Nebraska's high school field event leaders have given their competitors some lofty marks to shoot at in the course of the 1965 season.

The early pacesetters are Steve Yungblut of Scottsbluff in the shot put (58-1), Sam Buda of Creighton Prep in the discus (158-4½), Randy Reeves of Omaha Benson in the pole vault (13-9¼), Dennis Tunks of Boys Town in the high jump (6-3) and Bob Heimbuch of Grand Island in the broad jump (22-6¾).

All have comfortable leads in the specialties, but there are strong challengers in each event.

Yungblut is nearly two feet in front of Mike McNair of Imperial in the shot put, but there are five others who have reached 54 feet and can be expected to improve.

Buda is chased by three others who have bettered 150 feet, but he figures to improve as much or more than any of the close contenders.

Reeves is well in front in the pole vault, but Gothenburg's Tom Jobman has stamped himself as a threat with a 13-3 effort which puts him second behind Reeves on the list of all-time top performances.

Heimbuch, runnerup in the state meet as a sophomore, has been over 22 feet on several occasions this spring and is nearly six inches ahead of Larry Carlson of Beatrice. Others in the 22-foot class are Eddie Walker of Omaha Tech and Dick Dunham of Elkhorn.

Assaulting Ref Costs Soccer Spectator $28

Nottingham, England (AP) — a 16-year-old Manchester United soccer fan was fined $28 Monday for assaulting the referee after his team was beaten in the English Cup semi-finals.

After Leeds United edged Manchester 1-0 on a last minute goal March 31, referee Dick Windle was felled by a blow on his neck. He had to be carried to the dressing room. A policeman chased the attacker and brought him down with a diving tackle.

Pressure On Jack After Masters Win

. . . NOW NO. 1 PRO GOLFER

So says Ben Hogan, and Jack agreed Monday.

"Once you reach this station, the hard thing is to live up to it," said Hogan, the fabled pro of the 1950s, in reviewing Nicklaus's astonishing 271 score which cracked Hogan's 12-year-old Masters record by three strokes.

"The strain is tremendous," Hogan said. "It's not so difficult proving it to the public as it is proving it to yourself."

"Every time you walk out to that first tee, you realize you are under a great responsibility. People expect a lot of you. You have to deliver. Also, you have to keep delivering for yourself, or your confidence suddenly gets shaken.

During the late 1940s and early 1950s when he won four U.S. Opens, the GPA, the British Open and two Masters, Hogan was the favorite in every tournament he entered.

Nicklaus has set no immediate goal for himself — not even the professional grand slam, which always has been the target of Arnold Palmer. His aim is to win all the tournaments he can and prove himself the greatest golfer who ever lived.

"The slam, in itself, means nothing to me," the young champion said. "I will play in all the major championships, of course, but my intention is to take them one at a time."

His next test is the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas April 29-May 2. He will play in the U.S. Open at St. Louis June 16-19, the British Open at Royal Birkdale July 7-9, and the PGA Aug. 12-15 in addition to other selected events on the PGA tour.

No man has ever won the four big ones in one year. Hogan won the U.S. and British Opens and the Masters in 1953. In 1960, Palmer started with the Masters and U.S. Open, missed the British Open by one stroke and failed in the PGA after leading by one stroke.

Superior Liked In Hebron Relays

Hebron — Superior bids to become the fourth different team in as many years to win the Hebron Twilight Relays today. Field events begin at 3 p.m. and relays at 5 o'clock.

The Wildcats are led by Doug Anderson, who will be a threat in all field events. The versatile junior, who ranks among the state's top ten competitors in the 100 and 440, is also expected to contribute heavily in the relay events.

Finley Will Keep Time On Hurlers

Kansas City (AP) — Owner Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics is going to start keeping time on the pitchers and batters at Municipal Stadium in an effort to prove big league baseball can be speeded up.

A clock provided by Ray Dumont of Wichita, president of the National Baseball Congress who originated the idea in 1962, will be installed for the A's series with the New York Yankees starting Saturday.

It will tick off, so all the customers can see, the 20 seconds allowed by present baseball rules between the time a pitcher receives the ball from his catcher and the time he delivers his pitch to the batter.

The rule provides that if the pitcher fails to deliver the pitch within that time limit, the umpire will automatically call a ball and each such delay will result in a similar call.

If a batter does not get ready to bat promptly another rule requires the umpire to tell the pitcher to throw to the catcher and each such pitch will be called a strike.

Commission Has Good Return On Tagged Walleyes

Walleye tagged were all taken from one haul made immediately north of the reservoir inlet by seining under the ice. A total of 131 walleye were marked, and 20 tags have been turned in.

Lincoln High-Southeast Baseball Reset Today

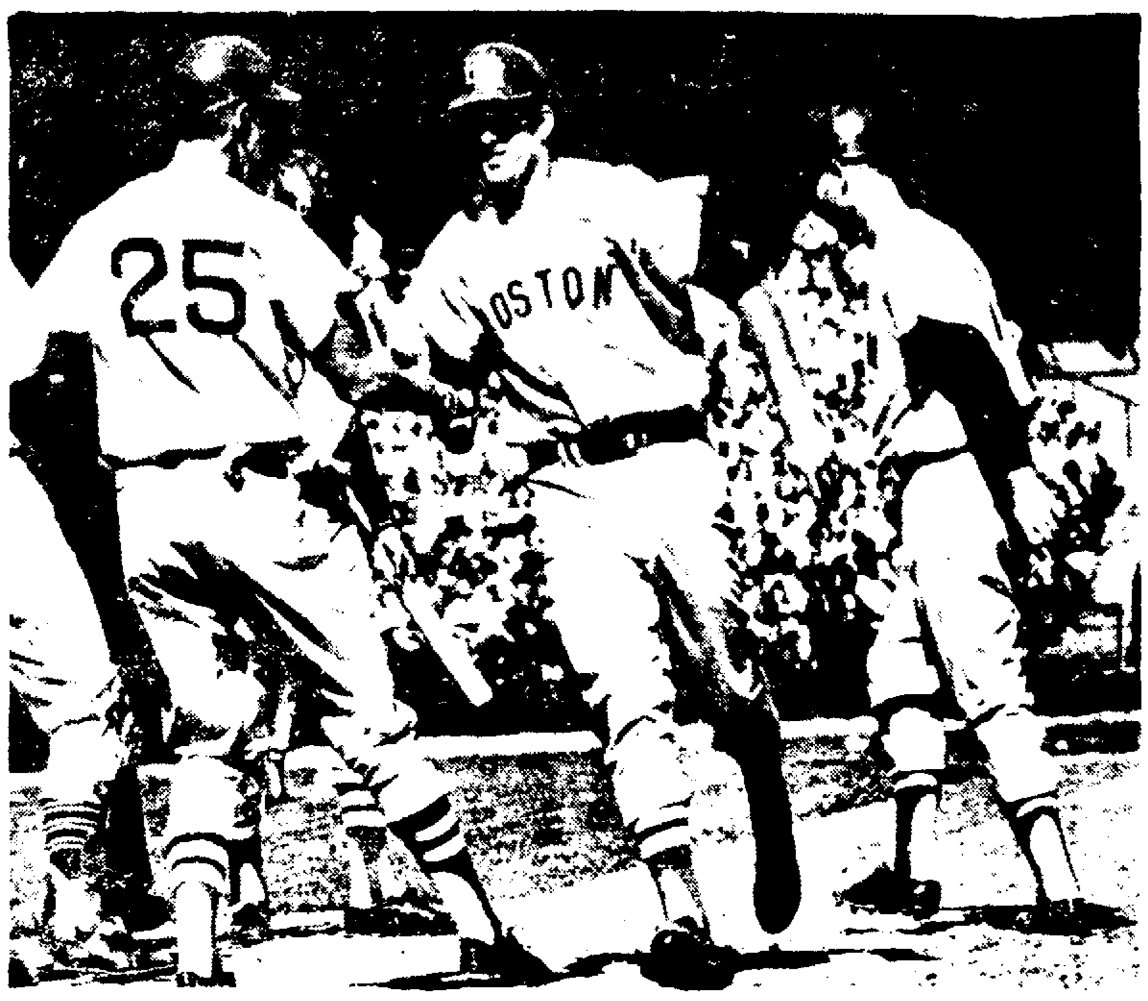
The two teams will try to play at Elks Field at 4 p.m. today.

Scribner Gets Coach

Scribner — Dennis Nelson has been hired as basketball coach at Scribner. Nelson, a 1962 graduate of Kearney State, has been assistant at Schuyler for the past three years.



THREE FOR BOSTON . . . Lee Thomas, center, of the Red Sox, is congratulated by teammates after hitting a three-run homer in Boston's opener with Washington. (See story page 13).

1965 Season Holds Key For Baseball's Hopefuls

. . . FRICK WILL BOW OUT

By STEVE SNIDER

New York (UPI) — Opening day, 1965, means many things to many people in major league baseball.

For 70-year-old commissioner Ford Frick it's the last time around in a career spanning nearly half a century as writer, broadcaster, league president and boss of the whole she-bang . . . He retires after this one.

Casey Stengel of the sad sack New York Mets, aged 74 going on 47, greets his 56th professional season with as much anticipation as his first . . . He says he'll keep going as long as he can get out to the mound under his own power to change pitchers.

Then there are these:

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers — How long will his talented but arthitic left arm take the punishment?

The Houston club and its boosters — Embarking on a new era in baseball, for better or for worse, in that Astrodome Stadium.

Citizens of the Milwaukee area—do we or won't we drop in for a nip at the "Last Chance Saloon" before the floor show moves to Atlanta in '66?

Red Schoendienst of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals — What do we do for an encore?

Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, Richie Allen of the Phillies, Wally Bunker of Baltimore, Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees — Standing up to the sophomore jinx.

Warren Spahn of the Mets—Seeking to prove he still has it at 43.

Whitey Ford, Jack Sanford, Johnny Podres and Hank Aaron — Veterans who underwent off-season surgery.

Rocky Colavito of the Cleveland Indians — Back "home" at last.

San Francisco Giants — Fresh start under new manager Herman Franks.

Two Lincoln Canines Win In Field Contests

Valley — Two Lincoln dogs won in the Missouri Valley Hunt Club Field Trials here.

Pressure On Jack After Masters Win

. . . NOW NO. 1 PRO GOLFER

Augusta, Ga. (AP) — Now that he's won his second Masters title and become the No. 1 tournament golfer of the world at 25, problems are just beginning for Jack Nicklaus.

So says Ben Hogan, and Jack agreed Monday.

"Once you reach this station, the hard thing is to live up to it," said Hogan, the fabled pro of the 1950s, in reviewing Nicklaus's astonishing 271 score which cracked Hogan's 12-year-old Masters record by three strokes.

"The strain is tremendous," Hogan said, "It's not so difficult proving it to the public as it is proving it to yourself."

"I completely agree with Ben," Jack said as he preared to return to his Columbus, Ohio, home.

"Every time you walk out to that first tee, you realize you are under a great responsibility. People expect a lot of you. You have to deliver. Also, you have to keep delivering for yourself, or your confidence suddenly gets shaken.

"It's awfully tough on any man. I think that's why a player is unable to stay at the top for very long."

During the late 1940s and early 1950s when he won four U.S. Opens, the GPA, the British Open and two Masters, Hogan was the favorite in every tournament he entered.

The same role — with its gnawing pressure — is ahead for Nicklaus, now the undisputed king of pro golf.

Barring injury or other bad luck, he is likely to dominate the game for the next 10 years and surpass every record in the books.

Nicklaus has set no immediate goal for himself — not even the professional grand slam, which always has been the target of Arnold Palmer. His aim is to win all the tournaments he can and prove himself the greatest golfer who ever lived.

"The slam, in itself, means nothing to me," the young champion said. "I will play in all the major championships, of course, but my intention is to take them one at a time."

His next test is the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas April 29-May 2. He will play in the U.S. Open at St. Louis June 16-19, the British Open at Royal Birkdale July 7-9, and the PGA Aug. 12-15 in addition to other selected events on the PGA tour.

No man has ever won the four big ones in one year. Hogan won the U.S. and British Opens and the Masters in 1953. In 1960, Palmer started with the Masters and U.S. Open, missed the British Open by one stroke and failed in the PGA after leading by one stroke.

"One thing," Jack said with a broad smile." I'm the only one with a chance at the grand slam this year."

He said no such trade is in prospect.

Both clubs are in the American Football League.

WINTERGREEN FLAVORED SKOAL CHEWING TOBACCO

Here's how to enjoy it most:
1. Take a small pinch of wintergreen flavored Skoal between your thumb and forefinger.
2. Place the Skoal between cheek and upper or lower gum.
3. Tuck it in comfortably with your tongue, and just leave it there. Skoal releases its rich tobacco pleasure slowly, without chewing. Every can is dated for freshness.

How can you know till you try it?

Superior Liked In Hebron Relays

Hebron — Superior bids to become the fourth different team in as many years to win the Hebron Twilight Relays today. Field events begin at 3 p.m. and relays at 5 o'clock.

The Wildcats are led by Doug Anderson, who will be a threat in all field events. The versatile junior, who ranks among the state's top ten competitors in the 100 and 440, is also expected to contribute heavily in the relay events.

York, the 1964 champion; Aurora, the 1963 champion; Hebron, winner in 1961 and 1962 and Wymore, which won the Class 3 division of the Midland relays last week, are other leading contenders for the team title.

Crete, Seward and Pawnee City round out the entry list.

Finley Will Keep Time On Hurlers

Kansas City (AP) — Owner Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics is going to start keeping time on the pitchers and batters at Municipal Stadium in an effort to prove big league baseball can be speeded up.

A clock provided by Ray Dumont of Wichita, president of the National Baseball Congress who originated the idea in 1962, will be installed for the A's series with the New York Yankees starting Saturday.

It will tick off, so all the customers can see, the 20 seconds allowed by present baseball rules between the time a pitcher receives the ball from his catcher and the time he delivers his pitch to the batter.

The rule provides that if the pitcher fails to deliver the pitch within that time limit, the umpire will automatically call a ball and each such delay will result in a similar call.

If a batter does not get ready to bat promptly another rule requires the umpire to tell the pitcher to throw to the catcher and each such pitch will be called a strike.

Commission Has Good Return On Tagged Walleyes

Through the cooperation of anglers and the Lexington Chamber of Commerce, the Game Commission has already received a better than 15% return of tags in a 1964 walleye project at Johnson Reservoir.

One tagged fish was even caught below the power house.

Walleye tagged were all taken from one haul made immediately north of the reservoir inlet by seining under the ice. A total of 131 walleye were marked, and 20 tags have been turned in.

1965 Season Holds Key For Baseball's Hopefuls

. . . FRICK WILL BOW OUT

By STEVE SNIDER

New York (UPI) — Opening day, 1965, means many things to many people in major league baseball.

For 70-year-old commissioner Ford Frick it's the last time around in a career spanning nearly half a century as writer, broadcaster, league president and boss of the whole she-bang . . . He retires after this one.

Casey Stengel of the sad sack New York Mets, aged 74 going on 47, greets his 56th professional season with as much anticipation as his first . . . He says he'll keep going as long as he can get out to the mound under his own power to change pitchers.

Then there are these:

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers — How long will his talented but arthitic left arm take the punishment?

The Houston club and its boosters — Embarking on a new era in baseball, for better or for worse, in that Astrodome Stadium.

Citizens of the Milwaukee area—do we or won't we drop in for a nip at the "Last Chance Saloon" before the floor show moves to Atlanta in '66?

Johnny Keane of the New York Yankees — Ex-Cardinal boss now on baseball's hottest managerial spot.

Red Schoendienst of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals — What do we do for an encore?

Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, Richie Allen of the Phillies, Wally Bunker of Baltimore, Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees — Standing up to the sophomore jinx.

Warren Spahn of the Mets —Seeking to prove he still has it at 43.

Dick Sisler of Cincinnati— in full command from the start for the first time with a team filled with spirit rather than depression over what proved to be Fred Hutchinson's fatal illness.

Whitey Ford, Jack Sanford, Johnny Podres and Hank Aaron — Veterans who underwent off-season surgery.

Rocky Colavito of the Cleveland Indians — Back "home" at last.

San Francisco Giants — Fresh start under new manager Herman Franks.

Two Lincoln Canines Win In Field Contests

Valley — Two Lincoln dogs won in the Missouri Valley Hunt Club Field Trials here.

Tony, owned and handled by Marge Johnson, won Open honors. Licorice, owned and handled by Walt Somerhiser, won the Derby Stakes. Second place in the same event went to Cindy, owned and handled by Stan Purtzer.

Equalization Board Upheld In Terry's County Property Valuation Test Case

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Supreme Court in a split decision Monday ruled the State Board of Equalization acted reasonably in setting county property valuations for tax purposes last summer.

Carpenter, as a property owner and taxpayer, filed the action last August in the high court after the state board accepted without change the property assessments submitted by the 93 counties.

He contended the board's decision was arbitrary, capricious and contrary to the state law requiring assessments equal 35% of actual value.

The majority of the court justices disagreed, and said the board levied valuations as uniformly and proportionately as was possible.

Wide Latitude

"A wide latitude of judgment and discretion is vested in the State Board of Equalization and Assessment," declared the majority ruling authorized by Chief Justice Paul White.

"On review of the determination of the state board, the proper rule is that this court may not substitute its judgment for that of the state board."

The court said, "We do not mean to say that there was not some evidence of probative force upon which the board could have acted.

"Perhaps, this court sitting as a super board of equalization, would have evaluated the evidence differently and made some adjustments, but we may not sit as a super board . . . and pass upon merits of the evidence.

"We cannot say that it (the board) was arbitrary and capricious in its actions, and in rejecting as unreliable a demonstrably false guide for equalization."

Precedent Setting

The ruling was viewed as precedent setting. The attorney general's office had feared an adverse ruling would have placed a substantial burden on all taxing units of the state and individual taxpayers.

The keystone to the court decision was that the state board has no authority to readjust valuations within a county.

It said the board can act only to "equalize assessments between different counties in order to achieve the constitutional objective of uniform and proportionate valuations over the state. This, we believe, the board did."

Carpenter argued the various counties had incorrectly reported property values by failing to use uniformly the six different statutory factors for determining actual values.

But the court pointed out that it "can probably always be demonstrated that the board, in dealing with the intangible concepts of valuation and uniformity, could never reach any mathematically precise result.

Yardstick

"Such a yardstick or criterion of equalization can never be accomplished. Approximately, both as to value and uniformity, is all that can be accomplished."

The board had maintained there was no statutory formula for proving actual values of property for assessment purposes.

Carpenter said the board should have given more weight to the sales-assessment ratio showing relationship between sale price and assessment of rural and urban property. He also contended the board did not comply with state law requiring it to equalize assessments between all counties at 35% of actual value.

The board largely disregarded the sales-assessment ratio after county assessors testified at a series of July hearings that this factor was ineffective.

The court majority again agreed, saying the objective of the law was accomplished if all property were assessed at a uniform value, even if less than 35% of actual value.

The six factors for statutory determination of value are earning capacity, relative location, desirability and functional use, reproduction cost less depreciation and market value in ordinary course of trade.

The court said, "The state board is not bound by the actual record of evidence taken before it and no particular method of procedure must be followed.

"No particular kind or standard of evidence is required and it may act upon the knowledge of its own members as to value or any other information satisfactory to it."

Dissenting from the majority opinion were Justices Hale McCown, Edward F. Carter, and Robert C. Brower.

Arbitrary Reduction

They said, "It seems clear to us from the record that at least some counties arbitrarily reduced their actual value and that a lack of uniformity and equality is clearly apparent."

The minority agreed with the majority in the opinion but added:

"We are convinced, however, that on the record here, regardless of the enormity of tre task, the failire of the board to do anything was illegal, contrary to law and arbitrary."

Justice Harry Spencer wrote a supplemental opinion to the court majority. He agreed the state board apparently did everything within statutory requirements to set uniform valuations, but questioned whether the burden of proof was with Carpenter instead of the state.

Ruling Described As 'Final Knife' For Tax System

Scottsbluff (UPI) — State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said Monday the Nebraska Supreme Court "has put the final knife in the back of the Nebraska tax system."

Carpenter said he was "completely astounded" at the court's upholding the decision by the State Board of Equalization last summer in accepting the valuation figures turned in by Nebraska's 93 county assessors.

Pointing to the high court's 4-3 split decision, the Scottsbluff senator said "some of the justices must have been astounded too."

Carpenter added: "The governor has said he won't enforce tax laws, and now the Supreme Court says it won't, so there is no tax law in Nebraska.

"The state tax commissioner and the county assessors will be at the mercy of the tax payer, who can now do anything he wants to do."

Carpenter said the court "did what it did within its wisdom and judgment, but it has made the tax system completely ineffective.

"This is a decision the state of Nebraska will live to regret," he added.

Equalization Board Upheld In Terry's County Property Valuation Test Case

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Supreme Court in a split decision Monday ruled the State Board of Equalization acted reasonably in setting county property valuations for tax purposes last summer.

The 4-3 decision upheld the board's position in a test case brought by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

Carpenter, as a property owner and taxpayer, filed the action last August in the high court after the state board accepted without change the property assessments submitted by the 93 counties.

He contended the board's decision was arbitrary, capricious and contrary to the state law requiring assessments equal 35% of actual value.

The majority of the court justices disagreed, and said the board levied valuations as uniformly and proportionately as was possible.

Wide Latitude

"A wide latitude of judgment and discretion is vested in the State Board of Equalization and Assessment," declared the majority ruling authorized by Chief Justice Paul White.

"On review of the determination of the state board, the proper rule is that this court may not substitute its judgment for that of the state board."

The court said, "We do not mean to say that there was not some evidence of probative force upon which the board could have acted.

"Perhaps, this court sitting as a super board of equalization, would have evaluated the evidence differently and made some adjustments, but we may not sit as a super board . . . and pass upon merits of the evidence.

Bill Cutting School Land Rental Held For Study

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A bill proposing to reduce the annual rental on state school lands from six to four per cent of appraised value was held for study Monday by the Legislature's Education Committee following conflicting testimony.

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Valentine, introducer of LB316, said, "Six per cent is unrealistic, in view of valuation reappraisal proposals."

Also testifying in support of the bill were a Board of School Lands and Funds spokesman and the Nebraska School Boards Association.

Unrealistic

But, John Lynch of the Nebraska State Education Association said, "Six per cent might be unrealistic if the lands were appraised at actual value, but there's nothing in the bill calling for an immediate reappraisal at actual value."

Also held for study was LB[illegible], providing that the bonded indebtedness of a school district incorporated into a Class III district shall become the general obligation of the latter district.

Introduced by the Education Committee, the bill is aimed at solving bonded indebtedness inequities in school district annexations in whole or in part.

Grand Island officials, the Nebraska School Improvement Association, and a bond consultant agreed with the intent of the bill, but testimony varied as to the effect of the bill or several proposed amendments.

In other action, the committee:

Annual Rental

—held LB317, providing for a constitutional amendment to permit the cost of administrating unsold school lands to be deducted from income before being distributed to the school districts.

CLARIFICATION ON VETERANS TAXATION EXEMPTION MOVES

The Judiciary Committee approved a bill Monday clarifying the language of an amendment to Nebraska's constitution that exempts the homes of some veterans from taxation.

The amendment, approved by state voters last November, provides that the homes of paraplegic and multiple amputee veterans are not subject to taxation if the Veterans Administration made a substantial contribution to the home.

LB845 provides that the land on which the homes are located is also tax exempt, and specifies that a veteran may qualify for a tax exemption this year if he claims the exemption before Aug. 1. It further specifies that he must apply before April 1 of following years to have the property declared exempt.

The bill was approved on a 6-0 committee vote.

The committee also approved LB303, allowing first class cities to pay the bond premiums for city councilmen, and LB305, allowing second class cities to do the same for officers and employes.

Governor May Sponsor New Tax Legislation

Gov. Frank Morrison indicated Monday that the Supreme Court's board of equalization ruling may result in tax legislation sponsored by his office.

The governor said his decision on requesting new measures in this session of the Legislature would follow a study of the high court's opinion.

Morrison said the opinion "brings out that the sales-assessment ratio isn't the sole criteria in establishing valuations. It shows that the sales-assessment ratio in and of itself is a sort of indefinite yardstick."

He said the majority of the Supreme Court justices "indicate the position that the board took that it is impossible for the state board to equalize within a county—that this is the responsibility of the county board of equalization."

The governor is chairman of the state board.

Morrison said the ruling also showed that the board's position can't be improved "until all counties are doing a good job of equalizing and adopting a uniform criteria of assessment."

He said both the majority and dissenting opinions would give "valuable guidelines to follow in improving our assessment procedures."

Administrative Matter

He said fair equalization was "mostly a matter of administrative improvement at the local level."

The governor added: "We can't have good assessments until all assessors use the same criteria for setting valuations."

He said, however, that most assessors are trying to do a good, conscientious job.

Morrison said many states have ducked the job of trying to properly collect a property tax by switching to another method of raising money.

"Most have adopted another form and let counties wallow in their own inequitable assessment procedures" for local money, he said.

MORRISON LAUDS McCOOK'S TREES

Gov. Frank Morrison reported Monday he has formally proclaimed April 22 as Arbor Day in Nebraska, and cited McCook as a "classic example" of outstanding community tree-planting effort.

The governor participated in a tree-planting project at McCook Sunday and said it was an example of people "not waiting for somebody else to do something, but everybody chipping in and helping."

He said the mayor of McCook himself had a shovel in his hands and was digging holes "and setting an example, and not sitting in his office holding a press conference."

Nebraska has towns seeking new industry while tolerating exposed dumps and auto graveyards, unsightly approaches, weedy lots and run-down property, Morrison said.

Communities need to spruce themselves up and radiate personality and vitality if they hope to lure new industry, he added

Public Sale Of Bonds Bill Draws Heavy Opposition

A bill requiring that all bonds of cities, villages and school districts be offered at public sale drew strong opposition at a public hearing before the Legislature's Banking Committee Monday.

The committee decided to hold the bill, LB503, introduced by Sens. Frank Nelson of O'Neill and Fred Carstens of Beatrice, pending further study.

Sen. Nelson said the measure is needed "to protect the taxpayers from slick, smooth-talking bond buyers and investment bankers."

Opposition

The League of Nebraska Municipalities, represetatives of a number of towns and school districts and bankers appeared in opposition to the bill.

They said the bill would have an adverse effect on smaller towns and school districts who depend on negotiation to get lower bond interest rate offers. They also said the state has no business placing such tight clamps on local governing bodies' authority to negotiate for bond financing.

They said the public sale requirement could result in higher interest rates on some bonds.

Advanced by the committee were:

LB697—Allowing cooperative corporations to set the number of shares which shall constitute a quorum at any stockholders' meeting with the provision that the quorum shall not be less than 10% of the stock.

Definition

Neither bill drew any opposition at the hearing.

DEATH PENALTY BILL'S CHANCES GOOD—KLAVER

The chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee said Monday the bill to abolish capital punishment in Nebraska stands a good chance of being sent to the floor.

Sen. Sam Klaver of Omaha commented on the eve of the public hearing on LB466.

"I don't know for sure that supporters of the bill have enough strength to win committee approval, but the chances are better now than in any previous session," he said.

Klaver's committee will hear the bill starting at 2 p.m. Tuesday. He said he expects a large crowd to attend the session.

"This is a very important bill. Everyone wishing to voice an opinion will be heard," he said.

Klaver said he personally is against outlawing capital punishment, but that he may vote to send the bill to the floor "so that every senator can decide the question once and for all."

Sen. Bauer Offers Amendments To Income Tax Bill

Sen. Hal Bauer of Lincoln Monday presented Revenue Committee Chairman Jules Burbach of Crofton with proposed technical amendments to LB797, his proposed state income tax bill.

The amendments will probably be acted upon by the committee Tuesday.

The bill has been advanced to the floor of the Legislature, but has not been physically reported to the floor pending adoption of the amendments.

Marvel Wants To Withdraw LB322

Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel asked legislative permission Monday to withdraw his LB322, which authorizes the transfer of state hospital patients to nursing homes or other care homes.

Action on the request was deferred in line with Unicameral rules requiring a one day layover.

Budget's Capital Improvements Out Wednesday?

Alliance Sen. George Gerdes said Monday he hopes the Budget Committee, of which he is vice chairman, can present to the Legislature on Wednesday its recommendations for a six-year capital improvement program to be financed by the state building fund property tax levy.

The package would include University of Nebraska construction expected to run into millions of dollars.

Gerdes said it may be necessary for the committee to hold a night meeting to complete its decisions on the capital improvement program.

Legislature Receives 884th Bill Of Session

Brought in by Lincoln Sen. Hal W. Bauer at the request of Gov. Frank Morrison, LB884 would increase from four to six years the terms of office of members of airport authorities, except that terms of members of the Omaha Airport Authority would be increased from four to five years.

The cars that compete in the Mobil Economy Run are not "specials" or "doctored" in any way. They're selected at random from dealer showrooms all across the country. The gasoline is the same gasoline you can buy at any Mobil station. Proof of its mileage potential is offered—not on a test track—but in public, over all kinds of roads from city streets to superhighways, through all kinds of conditions from deserts to 11,000-foot mountain passes.

It's America's toughest test of gasoline. Check the results above—certified by the United States Auto Club. Then try Mobil's High Energy Gasoline in your car—Premium or Regular.

Stock Market Advances To Record Peak

Volume of 6.06 million shares compared with 6.58 million Friday.

It was the fourth straight day of market advance. Analysts ascribed the rise to the momentum generated last week by President Johnson's moderate speech on the Viet Nam crisis and to the firming of the pound sterling through the British austerity program.

It was also noted that selling to meet April 15 tax payments was finished on Friday on a "regular way" basis, with four business days needed for delivery. This took a definite break from the market, analysts said.

Record income figures from such corporate giants as Radio Corp. and Du Pont heightened the atmosphere of confidence on Wall Street.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.5 to a new closing record of [illegible], with industrials up 3.0 to a record high, rails up .5 and utilities up 1.0 to a new high for the year.

The AP 65-stock average bettered its previous historic peak of 337.6 made Feb. [illegible]

The day was marked by continuous leadership from General Motors, which made another new high and advanced 1⅛ to 106⅝ as one of the volume leaders.

Ten of the 15 most active issues rose and five fell.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced on volume of 2.14 million shares compared with 2.29 million Friday.

Corporate bonds and U.S. government bonds were higher.

This can reduce or even eliminate the need for cultivating because Atrazine takes care of problem weeds and grasses for you. Control lasts not just for a few weeks, but for the entire season.

The idea is to spray Atrazine right after sorghum has emerged but before weeds are 1½ inches high. Your crop will be able to go through an entire season without weed competition for moisture and soil nutrients. The result? Higher yields and more profit for you. Contact your local supplier now for Atrazine.

Stock Market Advances To Record Peak

New York (AP)—The stock market rose to a record peak Monday in heavy trading and amid the start of improved earnings reports from corporations for the first quarter.

Volume of 6.06 million shares compared with 6.58 million Friday.

It was the fourth straight day of market advance. Analysts ascribed the rise to the momentum generated last week by President Johnson's moderate speech on the Viet Nam crisis and by the firming of the pound sterling through the British austerity program.

It was also noted that selling to meet April 15 tax payments was finished on Friday on a "regular way" basis, with four business days need for delivery. This took a definite break from the market, analysts said.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.06 to 906.36, topping the former closing peak of 906.30 made on Feb. 3.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.9 to a new closing record of 338.8, with industrials up 3.0 to a record high, rails up .5 and utilities up 1.0 to a new high for the year.

The AP 60-stock average bettered its previous historic peak of 337.6 made Feb. 4.

The day was marked by continuous leadership from General Motors, which made another new high and advanced 1⅛ to 106⅜ as one of the volume leaders.

Of 1,383 issues traded, 741 advanced and 413 declined. New highs for the year totaled 168 and new lows 24.

Ten of the 15 most active issues rose and five fell.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced on volume of 2.14 million shares compared with 2.29 million Friday.

Heavy Selling Hits Soybeans

Chicago (AP)—A burst of heavy selling drove old crop soybean prices into declines of more than 10 cents a buehsl from their day's highs in late dealings Monday on the Board of Trade but they closed on a recovery move.

Net losses for both the May and July deliveries were 5 cents or more after having attracted a revived demand. May wheat and May and July oats finished with moderate gains but other contracts were small fractions either way from Friday's closes.

Soybeans were ½-5½ cents a bushel lower at the close, May $2.98½-98; wheat unchanged to ⅝ higher, May $1.48⅞-¾; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, May $1.32¾; oats 1⅛ higher to ¼ lower, May 72⅜ cents; rye unchanged to ⅜ higher, May $1.18½.

Spray Atrazine to control weeds and grasses in sorghum.

One spray of Atrazine 80W herbicide controls most annual broadleaf weeds and grasses in sorghum for the entire season.

This can reduce or even eliminate the need for cultivating because Atrazine takes care of problem weeds and grasses for you. Control lasts not just for a few weeks, but for the entire season.

The idea is to spray Atrazine right after sorghum has emerged but before weeds are 1½ inches high. Your crop will be able to grow through an entire season without weed competition for moisture and soil nutrients. The result? Higher yields and more profit for you. Contact your local supplier now for Atrazine.

First TFX Production To General Dynamics

Washington (AP) — The Defense Department announced Monday award of the first production contract, totaling more than $1.5 billion, for the controversial TFX fighter plane.

The contract, covering procurement of 431 Air Force and Navy models of the plane, was granted to General Dynamics Corp., Fort Worth, Tex.

The plane is known as the F111A in its Air Force version, and as the F111B in its Navy form.

The F111 has been a center of controversy on Capitol Hill, and elsewhere, since Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided in November 1962 to pick General Dynamics to develop the multipurpose fighter. Questions were raised about the choice of General Dynamics over the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash.

There also was some service dissatisfaction with development of a single plane for both the Air Force and the Navy, although characteristics will differ somewhat to take account of carrier and land-based missions.

The Air Force version of the F111 made its first test flight last December.

First TFX Production To General Dynamics

Washington (AP) — The Defense Department announced Monday award of the first production contract, totaling more than $1.5 billion, for the controversial TFX fighter plane.

The contract, covering procurement of 431 Air Force and Navy models of the plane, was granted to General Dynamics Corp., Fort Worth, Tex.

The plane is known as the F111A in its Air Force version, and as the F111B in its Navy form.

The F111 has been a center of controversy on Capitol Hill, and elsewhere, since Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided in November 1962 to pick General Dynamics to develop the multi-purpose fighter. Questions were raised about the choice of General Dynamics over the Boeing Co., of Seattle, Wash.

There also was some service dissatisfaction with development of a single plane for both the Air Force and the Navy, although characteristics will differ somewhat to take account of carrier and land-based missions.

The Air Force version of the F111 made its first test flight last December.

Stock Market Advances To Record Peak

New York (AP)—The stock market rose to a record peak Monday in heavy trading and amid the start of improved earnings reports from corporations for the first quarter.

Volume of 6.06 million shares compared with 6.58 million Friday.

It was the fourth straight day of market advance. Analysts ascribed the rise to the momentum generated last week by President Johnson's moderate speech on the Viet Nam crisis and by the firming of the pound sterling through the British austerity program.

It was also noted that selling to meet April 15 tax payments was finished on Friday on a "regular way" basis, with four business days need for delivery. This took a definite break from the market, analysts said.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.07 to 906.36, topping the former closing peak of 906.30 made on Feb. 3.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.9 to a new closing record of 338.8, with industrials up 3.0 to a record high, rails up .5 and utilities up 1.0 to a new high for the year.

The AP 60-stock average bettered its previous historic peak of 337.6 made Feb. 4.

The day was marked by continuous leadership from General Motors, which made another new high and advanced 1⅛ to 106⅜ as one of the volume leaders.

Of 1,383 issues traded, 741 advanced and 413 declined. New highs for the year totaled 168 and new lows 24.

Ten of the 15 most active issues rose and five fell.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced on volume of 2.14 million shares compared with 2.29 million Friday.

Lighter Hogs Steady, Lower

Omaha (AP)—Lighter butcher hogs were steady to 25c lower and heavier weights were steady to strong with spots up a quarter in Omaha Monday.

Sows were steady to weak. Steers and heifers were steady to 25 higher.

Spray Atrazine to control weeds and grasses in sorghum.

One spray of Atrazine 80W herbicide controls most annual broadleaf weeds and grasses in sorghum for the entire season.

This can reduce or even eliminate the need for cultivating because Atrazine takes care of problem weeds and grasses for you. Control lasts not just for a few weeks, but for the entire season.

The idea is to spray Atrazine right after sorghum has emerged but before weeds are 1½ inches high. Your crop will be able to go through an entire season without weed competition for moisture and soil nutrients. The result? Higher yields and more profit for you. Contact your local supplier now for Atrazine.

Stock Market Advances To Record Peak

New York (AP)—The stock market rose to a record peak Monday in heavy trading and amid the start of improved earnings reports from corporations for the first quarter.

Volume of 6.06 million shares compared with 6.58 million Friday.

It was the fourth straight day of market advance. Analysts ascribed the rise to the momentum generated last week by President Johnson's moderate speech on the Viet Nam crisis and by the firming of the pound sterling through the British austerity program.

It was also noted that selling to meet April 15 tax payments was finished on Friday on a "regular way" basis, with four business days need for delivery. This took a definite break from the market, analysts said.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.06 to 906.36, topping the former closing peak of 906.30 made on Feb. 3.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.9 to a new closing record of 338.8, with industrials up 3.0 to a record high, rails up .5 and utilities up 1.0 to a new high for the year.

The AP 60-stock average bettered its previous historic peak of 337.6 made Feb. 4.

The day was marked by continuous leadership from General Motors, which made another new high and advanced 1⅛ to 106⅜ as one of the volume leaders.

Of 1,383 issues traded, 741 advanced and 413 declined. New highs for the year totaled 168 and new lows 24.

Ten of the 15 most active issues rose and five fell.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced on volume of 2.14 million shares compared with 2.29 million Friday.

Heavy Selling Hits Soybeans

Chicago (AP)—A burst of heavy selling drove old crop soybean prices into declines of more than 10 cents a buehsl from their day's highs in late dealings Monday on the Board of Trade but they closed on a recovery move.

Net losses for both the May and July deliveries were 5 cents or more after having attracted a revived demand. May wheat and May and July oats finished with moderate gains but other contracts were small fractions either way from Friday's closes.

Soybeans were ½-5½ cents a bushel lower at the close, May $2.98½-98; wheat unchanged to ⅝ higher, May $1.48⅞-¾; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, May $1.32¾; oats 1⅛ higher to ¼ lower, May 72⅜ cents; rye unchanged to ⅜ higher, May $1.18½.

SPUCC Due In Oxford Tuesday

Oxford—Dr. John L. Adams, associate director of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and Home Economics, will outline the place of the college, with particular reference to the college Extension service, at the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce meeting here Tuesday night.

A board of directors meeting will precede the dinner.

This can reduce or even eliminate the need for cultivating because Atrazine takes care of problem weeds and grasses for you. Control lasts not just for a few weeks, but for the entire season.

The idea is to spray Atrazine right after sorghum has emerged but before weeds are 1½ inches high. Your crop will be able to go through an entire season without weed competition for moisture and soil nutrients. The result? Higher yields and more profit for you. Contact your local supplier now for Atrazine.

First TFX Production To General Dynamics

Washington (AP) — The Defense Department announced Monday award of the first production contract, totaling more than $1.5 billion, for the controversial TFX fighter plane.

The contract, covering procurement of 431 Air Force and Navy models of the plane, was granted to General Dynamics Corp., Fort Worth, Tex.

The plane is known as the F111A in its Air Force version, and as the F111B in its Navy form.

The F111 has been a center of controversy on Capitol Hill, and elsewhere, since Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided in November 1962 to pick General Dynamics to develop the multipurpose fighter. Questions were raised about the choice of General Dynamics over the Boeing Co., of Seattle, Wash.

There also was some service dissatisfaction with development of a single plane for both the Air Force and the Navy, although characteristics will differ somewhat to take account of carrier and land-based missions.

The Air Force version of the F111 made its first test flight last December.

First TFX Production To General Dynamics

Washington (AP) — The Defense Department announced Monday award of the first production contract, totaling more than $1.5 billion, for the controversial TFX fighter plane.

The contract, covering procurement of 431 Air Force and Navy models of the plane, was granted to General Dynamics Corp., Fort Worth, Tex.

The plane is known as the F111A in its Air Force version, and as the F111B in its Navy form.

The F111 has been a center of controversy on Capitol Hill, and elsewhere, since Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided in November 1962 to pick General Dynamics to develop the multipurpose fighter. Questions were raised about the choice of General Dynamics over the Boeing Co., of Seattle, Wash.

There also was some service dissatisfaction with development of a single plane for both the Air Force and the Navy, although characteristics will differ somewhat to take account of carrier and land-based missions.

The Air Force version of the F111 made its first test flight last December.
